C-H, C-H-A-R, C-H-A-R-G-E-R-S, SAY CHARGERS! Jamie McDonald and Paige Yuracheck lead Charger fans at an Upper School pep rally. With successful sports teams and outstanding school spirit no one was left out of the excitement.

HOW COULD U FORGET?

The chicken pox; Grandma's house; your first puppy; the Junior/Senior Prom; your best friend; no matter where you go and no matter what you do your past experiences will stay with you. You will always remember the first day of Kindergarten and you will never forget the day you got your driver's license. These memories will shape and mold you for the rest of your life.

In the past twenty-five years countless students, teachers, and administrators have passed through Providence Day. They have taken with them values and lessons, answers and morals that make them the successful individuals they are today. Whether it was the third grade trip to King's Mountain or an S.G.A. skit in Upper School Assembly, something sticks in the mind of everyone who passes through PDS.

And in this, our twenty-fifth anniversary year that has not changed. When thinking back upon PDS in 1970 and observing it today, a simple question arises:

HOW COULD U FORGET?

THE PATH OF KNOWLEDGE. Although the sidewalk between the gym and Providence Hall is no Palace of Versailles, upper, middle and lower school students walk along it on their way to their respective classes. The intimate scale of the Providence Day campus encourages daily interaction among students of all ages.

STUDENT LIFE

Y o u n g
teaching friends, assemblies... and friends. Students at Providence Day attend classes Monday through Friday 8:15 to 3:05 but once the school day is over and the week is out they forget their classes and homework and concentrate on what to do later that night, afternoon, or weekend. Afternoons along with weekends are the times when students get away from their studies and stress and enjoy being a kid.
 They hang out with friends, play on the playground, and in some cases earn a little extra money or learn to drive.

For twenty-five years
 students at Providence Day have maintained the tenuous balance between the rigorous workload of school and their extracurricular activities. They also have memories of happy times of recess and crazy parties after Homecoming, scenes from plays that which they performed and A+ pluses on Physics exams they survived. So, as 8:15 hits each Monday morning it is not uncommon to hear:

WHAT
WEEKEND?

Prom '94 was an event that the Junior Class worked on the entire year so that they could provide one final memory for the graduating class. The night consisted of wild flowers, kings and queens, drawbridges, and a candlelight dinner. The theme was "The Magic of Camelot" and that was exactly what the night consisted of: magic.

For the seniors the night began at dusk, but for the juniors the Prom began at dawn. Their task was to transform Myers Park from an elegant ballroom to a castle from the medieval times in Europe. Jessica Hodgkins, treasurer of the Junior Class and a prom veteran commented, "It was really different from last year because this year I knew about everything from the dinner menu to the crowning of the king and queen."

The chilling breeze that lingered in the air had many of the wearing their dates' jackets more their dates while they waited for a carriage ride around the the country club. It was one of the many extra items that accented the Medieval period, and it allowed many people to cool down from the dancing taking place inside. Senior Missy Negri while taking a brief breather said "Dancing and singing on stage for the last time with my friends will be one of the memories that I will carry in my mind forever." Sale

HEE HEE HEE. Mr. Ray Bradbury smiles at his own joke. Students enjoyed his humorous anecdotes as part of his graduation address.

Although renowned science fiction novelist Ray Bradbury spoke at 1994 Commencement, the ceremony was far from otherworldly. Mr. Bradbury told anxious graduates a story concerning the end of the world. He spoke eloquently about a time when he and his brother had sat together eating ham and pickle sandwiches and drinking Orange Crush. Someone predicted the world would end that day. Fortunately it didn't. But the prediction made him wonder about the purpose of man on earth. His moving speech forced the graduates to think about their own self-worth in the future and the important decisions they faced. The gift from the class of 1994 was equally touching. The class officers presented a special gift to each department which had previously been at the top of respective wish lists. The choices were very thoughtful and everyone was pleased. The ceremony ended almost too quickly, it seemed. Emotional and reflective graduates were flooded with memories of their high school days. The day they had been waiting for so long had drawn to a close, and it was time to move on. Steimer

HEY GIVE ME SOME OF THAT! Scott Eflord gets some water from his teammate Carter Morgan after handling a big defensive tackle.

Homecoming 1994 took us back in time to the year 1970. A lot was happening during this important year. Disco, Hippies, the Vietnam War, new T.V. sitcoms and sports were making a new scene in America. The most important of all events in the year 1970 was the establishment of Providence Day School. The Homecoming theme celebrated this monumental event.

Although it was raining outside, the Pep Rally, held in the gym, was still a success. The seniors stole the show with their remake of movies and T.V. Shows shown in the 70's. Stewart Moore acted out "Mr. Rogers Neighborhood". He commented on his performance, "Mr. Rogers was one of my heroes growing up. It was an honor to be in his shoes."

All in all homecoming was a success. It was history in the making. Kiser

BREAK TIME

As the TK students get dismissed from school at 12:30, the Extended Day teachers' jobs soon begin. Making sure the kids have all of their bookbags and lunchboxes, the teachers watch as the students run for the playground. What could be more exciting after spending a day in the classroom than playing on the swings, sliding down the slide, watching movies, and eating an afternoon snack?

Extended day is a program which provides a place for children of working parents to stay after the regular school days ends. This year the program ranked one of the best afterschool programs in the country in Child magazine. The relaxing atmosphere provided a place for the children to be themselves and to interact with others from the school. A time to work on homework allows for more time to spend with the family at home, and the opportunity to get help from teachers if needed. When children were asked how they liked Extended Day, they replied, "We LOVE it!" Lawson

I jumped out of my van, and my big brother walked me to the TK room. My mouth dropped and I couldn't believe my eyes! There were tons of books, blocks, and colorful pictures. I dropped my brother's hand and went with the other kids to play. Everyone is a little nervous on the first day of school. For some, it's their first time walking down Providence Hall, and for others, it's routine. The senior lounge is overflowing with people and the vending machines are already being used up. New students are panicking as they try to find their classrooms. Some of the older students are overwhelmed by the expectations for this year. Is all this work possible? The first day of school is not always easy-but we all come out alive! -Johnson/Negri

YOU "R" UNIQUE

"Those who cannot remember the past are condemned to repeat it in the future." The past has definitely repeated itself this year at Providence Day, with many styles from years past showing up in our hallways. More and more people are "taking the risk", wearing clogs and platform shoes. The more daring students are sporting knee-high socks and kilts. Although the 70's trends are fun to wear, some students still prefer the classic jeans and Chuck Taylors, which will have their place in the halls forever.

Like Chucks, some things never go out of style. Friends, true friends, never go away. Grade differences don't seem to be a barrier as far as friendships go, and even after people graduate and begin new lives in the college world, friendships seem to stay strong. As Casey Stockton remarks, "Mary DeLamielleure was one of my best friends, and the thought that she was going away really hurt me. But now I know that even though she's far away nothing could ever touch our friendship." Trends come and go, but friends seem to stay forever. Senior Katie Kiser feels that the friendships she has made in the past thirteen years are ones that she will take with her forever. Cozon

The week is finally over, and everyone packs up and goes home. Whether it's going to a football game or watching cartoons on Saturday, it's all a part of the relaxation involved in weekends. For some older students this spare time is used for making money. Ben Hovis spends his weekends working at Harris Teeter. "You see lots of interesting people come in and mothers trying to control their screaming kids who want candy." This money can be used just to "go out" with friends or on a date, but for others it is saved for a car or for college. People go all sorts of places, like to the latest movie to hit the theaters or on week-end trips. Micheal Sherrill likes to go rock-climbing when he can get away on his weekends. "The greatest feeling is when you've reached the top and you can see everything around you." Don't forget about your teachers; they too enjoy their weekends. Mrs. Ertel takes this opportunity to ride her horses. We have to do our homework eventually and so do the teachers, those piles of papers need grading! So.... What are "U" up to this weekend?

WHO IS THAT? Mr. Wallace remains in costume with son Drew after faculty follies. It is not often you see Mr. Wallace in his underwear...or is it?

HOLD ON TIGHT.... Jonathan gives mom, Mrs. Robbins, a big hug after his appearance in the wedding.

Robbins

In grades K-12 you'll find Faculty children- Faculty brats is what we call them. Some of the teachers and children have been around for awhile, like the Fields, the Hinsons and the Murdocks. Others are new to this family circle, such as Dr. Makous and his daughter Michelle, as well as Mr. Roy Whitaker and his son Alexander. Some are obvious look-alikes such as Mrs. Nancy Porter and Carson, or Mrs. Sandra Robbins and Jonathan. A positive part of being a faculty brat is being able to get out of anything... well, almost anything! Forgetting lunch money is never a problem; mom or dad are only two doors down! Negatives are never being able to get away from the parents, or coming to school at the crack of dawn. Some of these faculty brats even had their parents in the classroom. Jessie Steimer said, "The funniest thing about having my mom as a teacher is that she had to write progress reports to herself!" Are you part of the "Brat Pack?" Negri & Johnson

DRAMATIC ENDEAVORS

Reyelt

LISTEN UP! The Duke of Milan, played by Mr. Stallworth, convinces Thurio, Sean Michelson, to marry his daughter. Two Gents was Sean's first dramatic production, but he had the veteran Duke to help him out.

"Theatre is about the passion to explore the mysterious. The Miracle Worker is no exception. Unfortunately, most people in this world don't realize how much more cut off from the joys of life they are than Helen Keller", remarked Director Lon Church. This true story of a deaf, blind, and mute child, having to face the everyday tasks of society, reveals to the audience the struggle to communicate without words. Portrayed by junior Katherine Leonard, Helen Keller is spoiled rotten by her family, allowing her to do as she wishes. The Keller family hires a teacher to help Helen with her problems; Annie Sullivan, played by senior Carrie York, accomplishes the difficult task of communicating to and controlling young Helen.

"It was really hard to play a blind girl, but that is just a challenge that comes with the role of Helen Keller. After a while, I really got used to playing the part and acting like I was in fact blind, deaf, and mute", commented Katherine Leonard. The crew for The Miracle Worker did an astounding job with the set, making for a tremendous fall production. Attendance for the play was at an all-time high for an Upper School production. If nothing else, the play opened up the eyes of many of the audience members to the senses which many take for granted.

In the spring, Mr. Church directed a classic musical, Two Gentleman of Verona. The play is about two young men who leave their small town of Verona to go to the big town for a little fun. As it turns out love gets in the way. This old fashion love story has a little Rock-n-Roll kick and a psychedelic set design which makes the younger generation feel right at home.

WHAT A DAY. Zach Goodyear gets into his car on a Winter afternoon. Although gloves kept a driver's hands semi-warm, the steering wheel still felt a bit chilly if you'd been parked in the shade all day.

I'LL GIVE YOU A CALL. Stacey Woodrow makes last minute plans for the weekend with a friend in the parking lot before leaving school on Friday afternoon. Having one's own car made it more convenient (and less embarrassing) to go out on weekends.

Every teenager counts down to that sixteenth birthday trip to the DMV. If you're lucky the big day falls on a school day, and Mom or Dad makes an appointment first thing in the morning for the test. You stay cool through the written part, hold your breath through the driving, and, finally, suffer through the humiliation of the picture. Then-supremest of all joys-you drive yourself to school. Never mind that there aren't enough student parking spaces, never mind that you're driving the family station wagon, never mind that you're having to bag groceries to pay for the gas.

Furman

SYMBOL OF SUCCESS. After obtaining his license, a student then had to get that pesky PD parking sticker. Without a sticker, those three dollar parking tickets would mount up fast!

"YES, DAD, I'M FINE!" Jared Patterson converses with his father on the carphone. When many students got their licenses, their parents began to worry more, and some even installed carphones so they could stay in touch.

Fuman

Fuman

There you are pulling into the parking lot, listening to your music as loud as you want, driving to school. There is perhaps no more delicious pleasure than the freedom provided by a car, even if it is not your own: No more carpool, dates with Dad driving, or waiting around for Mom to come and pick you up. Instead you can escape into a world where you are literally behind the wheel. Steimer

Silver Memories and Golden Hits

Happy Birthday to you, Happy Birthday to you, Happy Birthday PDS, Happy Birthday to you. After the Lower School students paraded into the gym celebrating PDS's twenty-fifth anniversary the fifth grade band boogied down with selections like Disco Dat Way. Grandparents watched as PD rocked with the fifth grade string selections. The first grade taught the world to sing and did the Monster Mash, while TK lined up to the Loco-Motion. Kindergarten worked from nine to five, while the third grade was stayin' alive. Fourth graders knew they were the world when they touched everyone's achy-breaky hearts. With tale-spinning excitement the second grade celebrated PDS's birthday under the sea. Finally, with silver memories and golden hits, Grandparent's Day ended with a lion king's success. Woodrow

I'll cheer For U

Early in September, a group of twenty cheerleaders assembled to form a competitive squad for the first time in a number of years. The squad contained both Varsity and Junior High cheerleaders, which proved to be an advantage for the team. Dress rehearsal soon approached, and the routine just didn't seem to come together, but when the performance really counted, the girls came through. At Independence High School on an early Saturday morning, the stomachs of twenty Charger cheerleaders were tossing and turning.

Many mind run-throughs were done to ensure a smooth routine. Soon it would be time to perform in front of a gym full of people and most importantly the five judges. Finally, it was the moment and the squad performed beautifully. The stunts went up smooth, their voices were loud, and adrenaline rushed through their bodies. A second place finish was grabbed by the team, only a narrow defeat to East Mecklenburg for first. Again at Independence the next week, the squad was up against a lot stiffer competition, but would still qualify for the national competition in Orlando, Florida. For the first year of competition, the squad did a tremendous job filled with fun and surprises. Wagner

Sleeping, laying out in the sun, working summer jobs, going to the beach, and most importantly the thought of not having school the next day is what turns most people on to summer. Most people agree that summer is definitely their favorite time of the year. From the moment that final exam is over and the lockers are cleaned out, everyone is anticipating the vacations, free time, and, as junior Ginny Cozon puts it, "I can't wait to wake up tomorrow morning knowing I don't have any homework to finish before 8:15!"

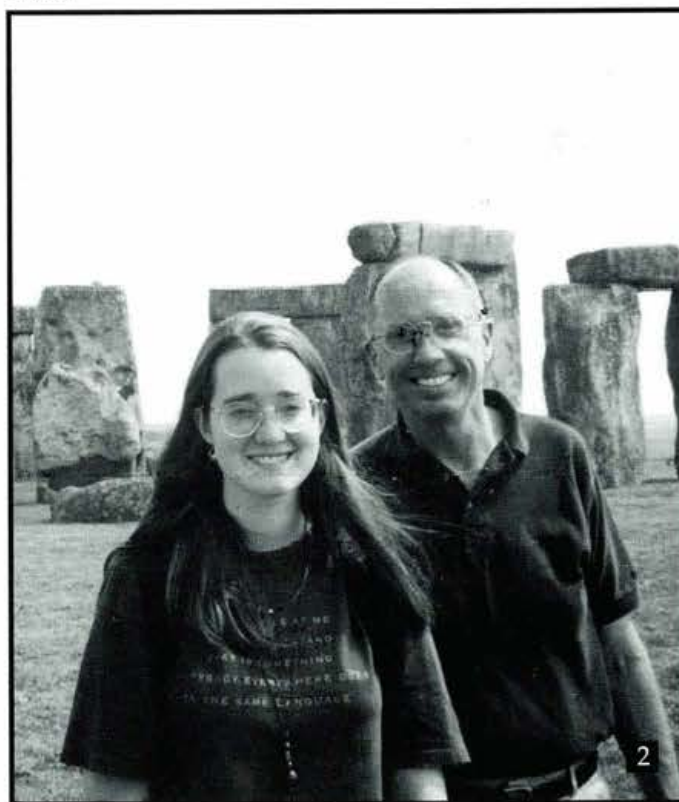

Making money is also a big part of summer agendas for a lot of students. Doing everything from serving fast food to being a camp counselor, they worked hard to keep the dough rolling in. "I really enjoyed making the campers' weeks worthwhile," commented Caron Pizarro, who spent time as a volunteer at Camp Whippoorwill, a day camp in Charlotte. Whether students spend their summer working or playing, it is much too short and it seems even as the first week of school comes to a close, they are looking forward nine months to when they'll get their summer vacation again. Stockton

 for twenty-five

growth, excellence,
and academic achievement.

Providence Day School is a testimony to the vision of its founders, the dedication of faculty and staff, and the generous support of parents, alumni, and friends. We are proud that all of our graduates attend four year colleges and are prepared to be independent, responsible members of their community.

My How U Have Changed!

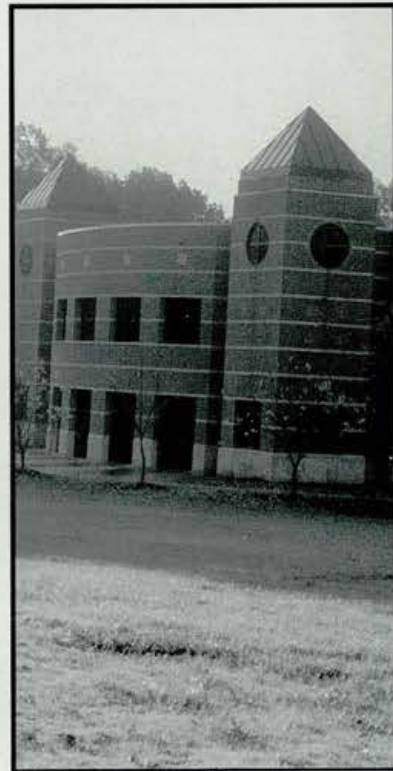

It all began with a little brick house built by dreams.

FROM A BRICK HOUSE TO THIS. In 1988 Providence Day added to its campus the MacMahon Fine Arts Center. This building is used to allow students to be creative and independent without the use of a textbook.

ONCE THERE WAS A HOUSE. Twenty-five years ago Providence Day consisted of this house which students in fifth and sixth grade attended. Now this house is a center where students go to learn Spanish, German, Latin, and French.

RUSH HOUR TRAFFIC AT 3:05. Everyone knows when the end of school has arrived by the overflow of cars cramming into the school. With the help of police officers and smiling teachers the flow of traffic twenty-five years later seems to be under control.

Liberty

WATCH OUT, COMING THROUGH... Students then and now always find ways to clown around between class whether it is just joking with friends or being pushed down the hall on a tricycle. Friends seem to rank high in priorities among students: many times even above homework.

Once upon a time a little brown brick house stood strong and proud among students and faculty as they entered it for another day of tests, quizzes, notes, and an occasional giggle. Today, twenty-five years later that little brown brick house, which is now the foreign language building, still stands strong and proud among two gymnasiums, two libraries, a fine arts center, three academic halls, and numerous athletic fields. The student body that once was composed of fewer than one hundred students in grades five and six has grown to one of over one thousand from grades T.K. through twelve that crowd into the halls every morning rushing to class. A lot of things seemed to have changed over the years but one thing that has remained the same is the tradition of caring and determination. Students now and then experienced times of joy and excitement like Prom, Grandparents' Day, and Homecoming and times of sadness like graduation.

As the years have passed changes in the geography of Providence Day have occurred to provide its students with championship titles, Morehead Scholarships, hopes of Julliard Academy of the Arts, and the ability to speak fluently in more than one language. In celebrating its twenty-fifth birthday it is clear even though time brings about changes, the tradition within the halls of Providence Day is still alive and we are looking forward to another twenty-five years. JUST HANGIN' OUT. Lunchtime is not only spent eating the delicious food within the dining hall but also a time for students to catch on all the days news. Raj Naik, Dwight Bodycott, Casey Field, and Jon Topham, who are among the class of ninety-six, find that lunch is a very relaxing period.

THE MULTI-PURPOSE ROOM! Before the dining hall and 4C's catering, food was bought and prepared by student's mothers in the ever famous multi-purpose room. Things like potato patties, round pizzas, and the steak sandwiches were the highlights to the luncheon menu.

CELEBRATE GOOD TIMES!

The entire PDS Family celebrates 25 years in more ways than one.

MOM AND DAD? Parents Mr. Wilkenson and Mrs. McMullen don seventies garb at the Auction. Many familiar faces became unrecognizable as people put on outfits they normally kept hidden in their closets.

As summer came to a close and Providence Day's twenty-fifth year began, preparations were already underway for the greatest celebration in the school's history. The Parents' Council planned an auction for the fall, the SGA created a Homecoming event based on themes from the Seventies for mid-October, and countless 70's Dress Up events were scheduled throughout the fall. As parents and faculty welcomed alumni at several open-houses, students stared at the pictures in the halls of their teachers twenty-five years ago. The nostalgia materialized into one of the most successful sports seasons ever.

Money raised at the auction will enhance the curriculum. New playing fields will produce better athletes and better teams. Graduates will go away sad that they are leaving but assured that they are welcome back at any time. Sale

WHAT DOES THAT SAY? The Class of 1995, led by "25" mascot Robert Murdock, cheers at the Homecoming Pep Rally. The seniors' float revolved around 70's TV shows such as "Laverne & Shirley" and "Mr. Rogers".

CHARGE! On Homecoming night alumni from the past quarter of a century "came home" to cheer on the Chargers. Students and adults had fun joining along in cheers from both yesterday and today.

ANYONE, ANYONE? Auctioneer Bill Doller waits for a bid at the annual fund-raiser auction. With the combination of current parents and faculty donations as well as those from the alumni PDS was able to raise extra money to better the campus.

Academics are what Providence Day School is all about. The rigorous college-preparatory curriculum creates a highly competitive school environment where students strive to achieve their personal best. But academics at Providence Day go beyond traditional lectures and notetaking. Not only do teachers equip students with these skills, but they also instruct them on how to use these basic abilities as a springboard to higher learning.

Learning is the key to education at Providence Day. Students do not just memorize a lengthy string of random facts. Instead, they acquire in-depth, detailed knowledge of subjects which really interest them. A desire to learn is prominent at Providence Day School. Students eagerly pursue knowledge because innovative teachers here make learning enjoyable. Teachers utilize technology such as our new Computers hooked to the Internet, the Laserdisc, and many other different tools to inspire and motivate students to develop skills which will benefit them later as they leave high school and get out into the "real world". Although learning is enjoyable here the workload is anything but light. And though students willingly accept challenges presented to them every day, they often hear themselves repeating:

Let's Play the Quiet Game!

Visitors come in and out of our classes from time to time, and they compliment the students on how quiescent they are in class. The students always pay attention to the teacher and stay calm and quiet. But there are exceptions. Many PDS study halls are spent studying or reading. If they talk, students ask about a range of topics including the abstruse geometry homework the night before. The study halls in which talking is not allowed are Mrs. Dreher's and Mrs. Smith's. They will not tolerate people fooling around. Even though those in their classes complain about this, they get all their homework done and are able to watch hours of T.V., play computer games, or talk on the telephone at night.

"Mr. Downs' study hall is the ultimate best!" Christina McRae exclaims. "I look forward to seeing him every day at 11:00am!" Why does Christina love this study hall so much? "We are so relaxed. Mr. Downs reads the paper and if we're quiet, we can talk whenever we want." It has also been heard that Mr. Lucia's second period study hall is one of the most relaxed in the school. Mr. Lucia explained. "We are in the teacher's lounge just lounging!" Forcucci

UH...HELLO! Matt Harrison and Ashley Caudle get a lot of work done during their study hall. They often competed how little work they could get done each day.

LOOK INTO MY EYES... Transitional Kindergarteners Amber Finneyfrock and Sara Robinson stare mesmerized at the eyeballs Mrs. Alix shows them. Mrs. Alix had many interesting objects to view in her lab.

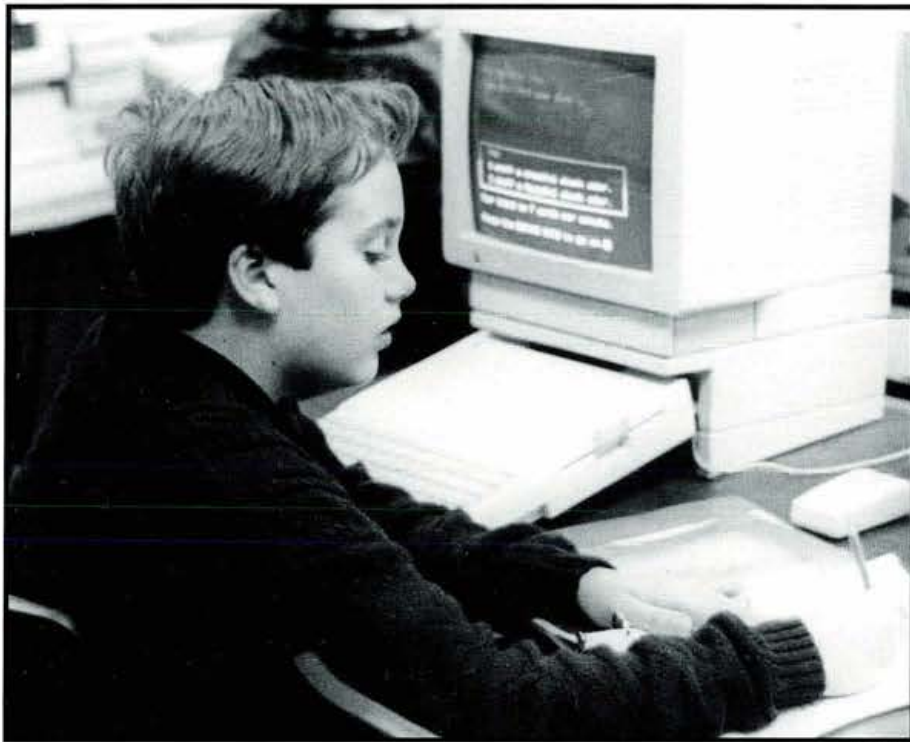

Lower School had the opportunity to take classes that were not only educational, but a break from usual academics just like there are electives in Middle and Upper Schools.

The Lower School Art and Music classes combined their ideas in a project for Grandparent's Day. Each grade took the songs they were singing for the annual program and designed a twenty-fifth anniversary cake for Providence Day to decorate the gym. For example, the second grade's cake had an underwater theme in honor of their song "Under the Sea" from The Little Mermaid. This project gave the Lower Schoolers a chance to put both talents on display for their relatives.

Cherry

WHAT'S NEXT? Fifth grader Raj Odhav decides whether to cut or paste in Lower School Art. The students did activities with all sorts of mediums from pottery to pen and ink.

JUST FIVE MORE MINUTES... David Loehr rushes to copy his words per minute in his notebook. The students always wished they could have typed just a little bit faster.

THE ANSWER IS.. Mrs. Hunter helps John Boardman with a question. Being a fifth grader, John was an experienced computer user, but the teacher always has the final word.

Lower schoolers learned two skills in their special classes that will help them in later life: Science Lab and Computer. In these classes, Mrs. Alix and Mrs. Hunter used games and various activities to interest their students.

Science Lab was a fairly new addition to Lower School's special classes. Mrs. Alix had a lab with many hands-on activities for the students to participate in. Third grade especially enjoyed using the microscopes to get a better look at various types of bacteria. Some Lower Schoolers learned how to identify leaves and make rockets, too.

All Lower Schoolers took part in a weekly Computer class. Mrs. Hunter made the usually tedious task of typing more enjoyable by using a game called Sticky Bear. The Lower School students didn't only do hard work on Computers. They played games such as Wheel of Fortune, Montezuma's Revenge, and everyone's favorite, Oregon Trail.

In these special classes, the Lower Schoolers learned who made the first rocket and how not to "hunt and peck". Through it all, they had experiences they will never forget.

LOOK AT THIS! Andrew Carter shows classmates Ivy Sale and Jeremy Levin an interesting part in his book. AP English was comprised mostly of reading different types of poetry and many books.

WHICH ONE IS THIS? Jenny Montague examines a part of her science project before she presents it to her class. This part of the projects was dreaded by most students because it involved getting in front of the class and answering questions.

What do AP classes and science projects have in common? They are both dreaded by students each year.

Advanced Placement classes are normally taken during the junior and senior years to prepare students for college. One good part of these classes is that in some of them, students are taken on field trips to further their knowledge on the topics that they are studying. The AP Government class took a trip to Washington, D.C. to work in model congressional committees. "Even though our bill was killed in committee, I got to ride in my first taxi!" remarked Elisabeth Robinson.

No matter what grade a person is in, their science class performs many activities and labs. In chemistry, students work on many labs to learn more about chemicals and elements. In biology, students work with living organisms to study biological processes. One main lab that all students must perform is the frog dissection in biology. "At the beginning, I was a little hesitant about dissecting the frog, but after awhile, it wasn't too bad and it turned out to be fun," remarked Sarah Lincoln. Students were also required to design and perform their own science projects to learn more about some aspect of science.

These two areas of school curriculum are helpful in ways that go unnoticed to students. However, the skills that are learned help to prepare them for the time ahead. Hodgkins

"What time is curfew?" "What train gets us to the Congresgebouw?" "Point of order, please!" "What is kipinflugen?" At first glance it seems impossible for all of these questions to come out of one person's mouth in one day. But at THIMUN '95 variety was a given. From Arabs with orange mohawks to guilder/dollar conversion rates students got a glimpse of many aspects of life outside the U.S.

THIMUN is one of many international Model UN conferences. The conference is a mock United Nations meeting in which students work as delegates of their assigned country. Providence Day was assigned Bosnia-Herzegovina and had quite a task before them to achieve peace in the war-plagued nation. The delegation traveled with the Atlanta International School that represented Yugoslavia. The two groups, including Ambassador Andre Butler, worked hard and presented a realistic resolution for peace to the General Assembly.

Work was a definite part of the THIMUN trip, but fun played an important role as well. The group, led by Mr. Ted Dickson and Mrs. Sandy Moore, arrived in Amsterdam, Netherlands, on Friday and spent the weekend touring the city. "We got to see everything from the Anne Frank House to the Red Light District," said Sophomore Justin Gober. From Amsterdam the delegation traveled to Den Hague, also in the Netherlands, where the THIMUN conference took place. Working during the day and going out at night allowed everyone to get a thorough taste of Dutch life. On the way home the tired Bosnian and Yugoslavian delegates stopped for one last jaunt in Brussels, Belgium. "I was so ready to get home," remarked Senior Ellen Grier. "I'm so glad to be an American!"

A BREAK FROM THE USUAL

Maintaining a high standard of academic excellence for twenty-five years is not an easy task. Providence Day has managed it, however, because the education of its students starts very early, on a personal level.

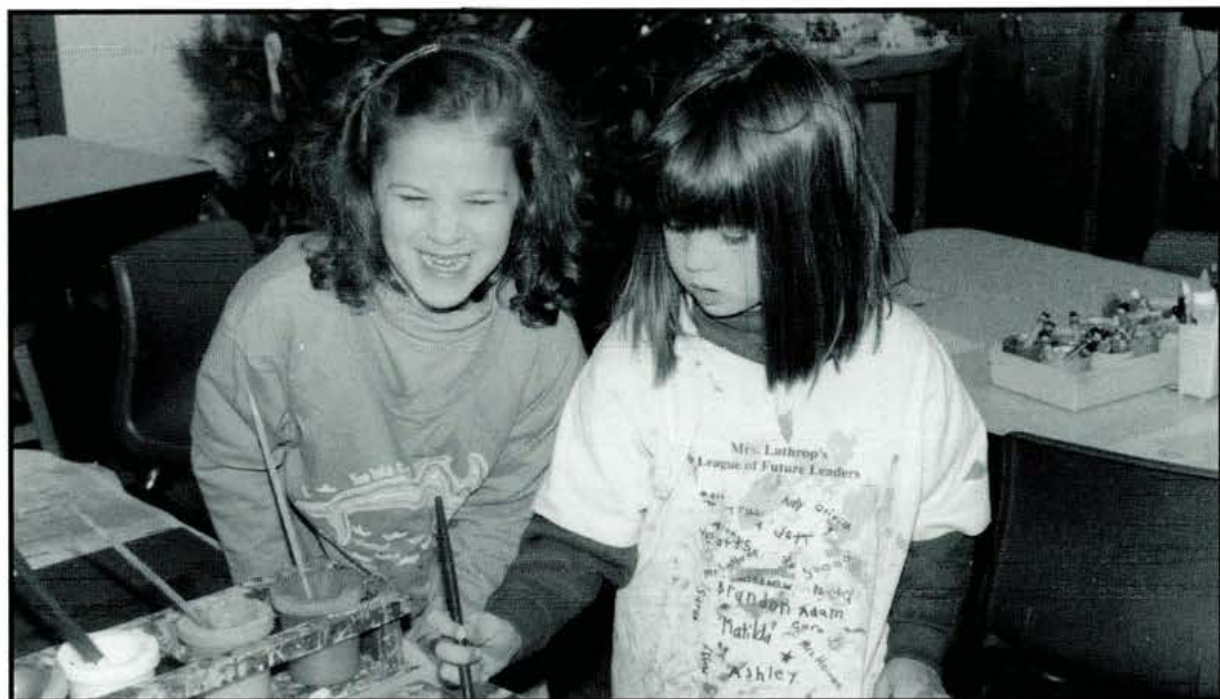

One of the ways Providence Day achieves this early education of the whole student is through academic resource programs. In addition to their other extracurricular classes, Lower School students also meet with resource persons Mrs. McLeod, Mrs. Reece, and Mrs. Alix on a weekly basis.

Mrs. McLeod visits students in their classrooms, working along with teachers to help the students learn about the writing process. This is good practice, because most higher level English courses at Providence Day stress the process of writing, rewriting, and editing. Periodically throughout the year the students publish and illustrate their own books and hold publishing parties to which parents and friends are invited. A Lower School literary magazine culminated the year's hard work in writing.

Mrs. Reece also visits students in their classrooms. Her main goal is to make math fun so that students will not shy away from higher level problem solving courses later on in school. She works with Lower Schoolers honing their problem-solving skills and stressing the importance of patterns in numbers.

Students visit Mrs. Alix in her lab weekly. Here they get to have hands on science experiences, doing group dissections of various organs, learning about plant growth, and about insect development. Mrs. Alix also helps to coach the Lower School students on their self-designed science research projects. Projects like these continue up into high school, so meeting with her is a good way for students to learn the scientific method early.

Providence Day claims that it educates the whole person. It can back up this claim to the fullest degree because it begins the education of each student early. Resource persons Mrs. McLeod, Mrs. Reece, and Mrs. Alix supplement the students' learning of the fundamental processes which are crucial in higher level courses. Steimer

Tinsley

Do P.E. and Supercomputing have anything in common? Yes, actually they do. In order to be successful at either one, hard work is essential. When asked about supercomputing, Whitten Scholtz remarked, "I'm really glad that I got involved in the whole area of Supercomputing. It has exposed me to many other aspects in the computer world." Many students and teachers share Whitten's enthusiasm for the highly complicated mind games involved in Supercomputing. As for the jocks, sixth grader Helena Sanders replied, "I really enjoy P.E. The only part that I didn't like this year was the cross country section." Aside from the entertaining aspect of P.E., it also serves as a good break from the classroom, relieving some of the pressures that come with school. Supercomputing and P.E. are definitely different, but both of them are entertaining, challenging and an important supplement to the academic core. Lincoln

ON THE ROAD AGAIN

The Freshman and Sophomore classes jumped on to separate buses and made their respective ways in opposite directions. The Freshmen went north to Washington D.C. to expand their knowledge of the United States Government, and the Sophomores headed south for Key West, Florida to study marine biology.

The trip to Washington included tours of the Smithsonian Museum and many historical homes such as Robert E. Lee's and George Washington's. Down in the Keys the Sophomore Parrot Heads did a crash course in snorkeling and then got friendly with a heap of creepy critters of the aquatic kind. A touch of inclement weather allowed for some bonus leisure time in Key West where team PDS gave the local economy a serious shot of dining and shopping adrenaline. For both classes the return home brought on acute exhaustion particularly for the sophomores who had to cope with a marathon bus ride. Still, not a wholly unkind price to pay for a break from the routine. Kiser/Reyelt

Memories echo across the field where average football players are transformed into heroes after historic tackles and game-winning touchdowns. Number one seeds have aced time after time on the courts scoring points and winning matches. BRING ON THE BOYS. Michelle Evans, Caron Pizarro, and Courtney Guilford eagerly await the entrance of the Varsity Boys basketball team. Before each game, they made a tunnel with their pom-poms which pepped the players up for victory.

Matthews

SURE?...OR UNSURE? Irene Ovstegard raises her cherished pom-pon to show her devotion for the team. This was Irene's first year on the squad, but she brought with her new ideas to spark the team.

FOLLOW OUR LEAD. The Varsity Cheerleading Squad performs with the fifth grade girls during Lower School Football night. The fifth graders showed remarkable potential for future cheerleading squads.

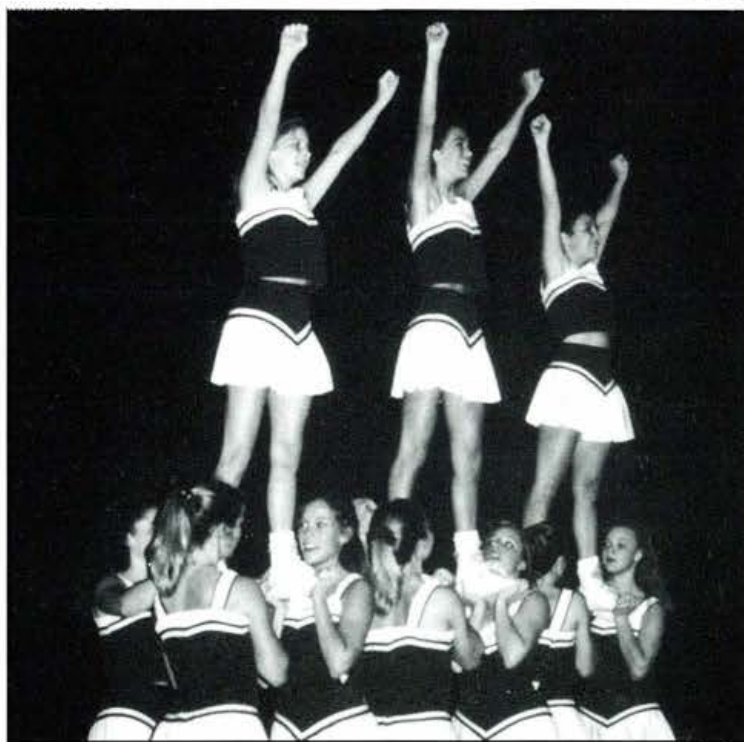

Reyelt

Matthews

JUMP AROUND. During a timeout, the squad performs a cheer containing a toe touch. Flexibility is an important requirement for cheerleading.

NO, WE'RE NOT EGYPTIANS, we're just forming another pyramid. The girls improved their stunt capability by attending practices all summer long.

Matthews

"Even though we worked really hard and were often frustrated, all of our work paid off when we received all the compliments after the pep rally."

GINNY COZON

"I was impressed that this year the crowd finally figured out the cheer 'Go Big Red'"

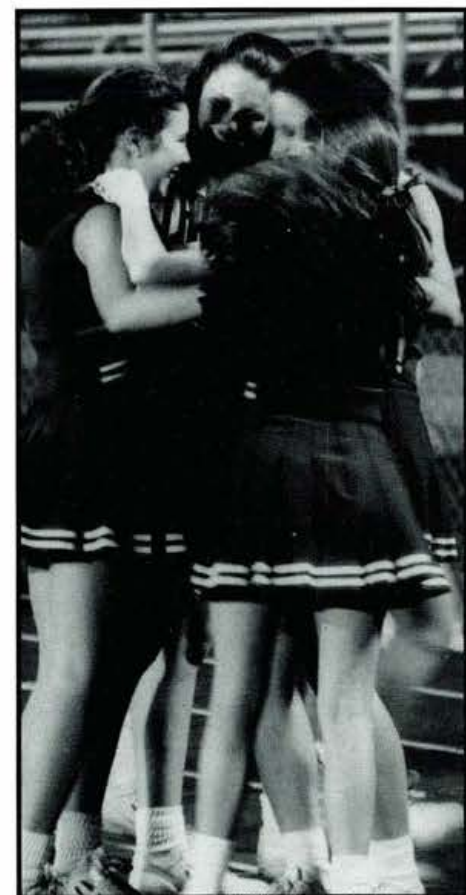

SARAH WAGNER

"This was my first year being a flyer, which was really scary at first, but now I wouldn't do anything else!"

PAIGE YURACHEK

"This year we missed all the road trips. We'd trade Asheville School for practice any day."

"The long van trips were the best while they seemed short due to Jessica's funny stories which kept us laughing."

-Kristin Lawson

"The reason we won the conference championship is because we've been going to Jenny Craig and we aren't as fat as the other team."

-Casey Stockton

"Dena makes the best dog impersonations. Better than anyone I know."

-Sarah Lincoln

Matthews

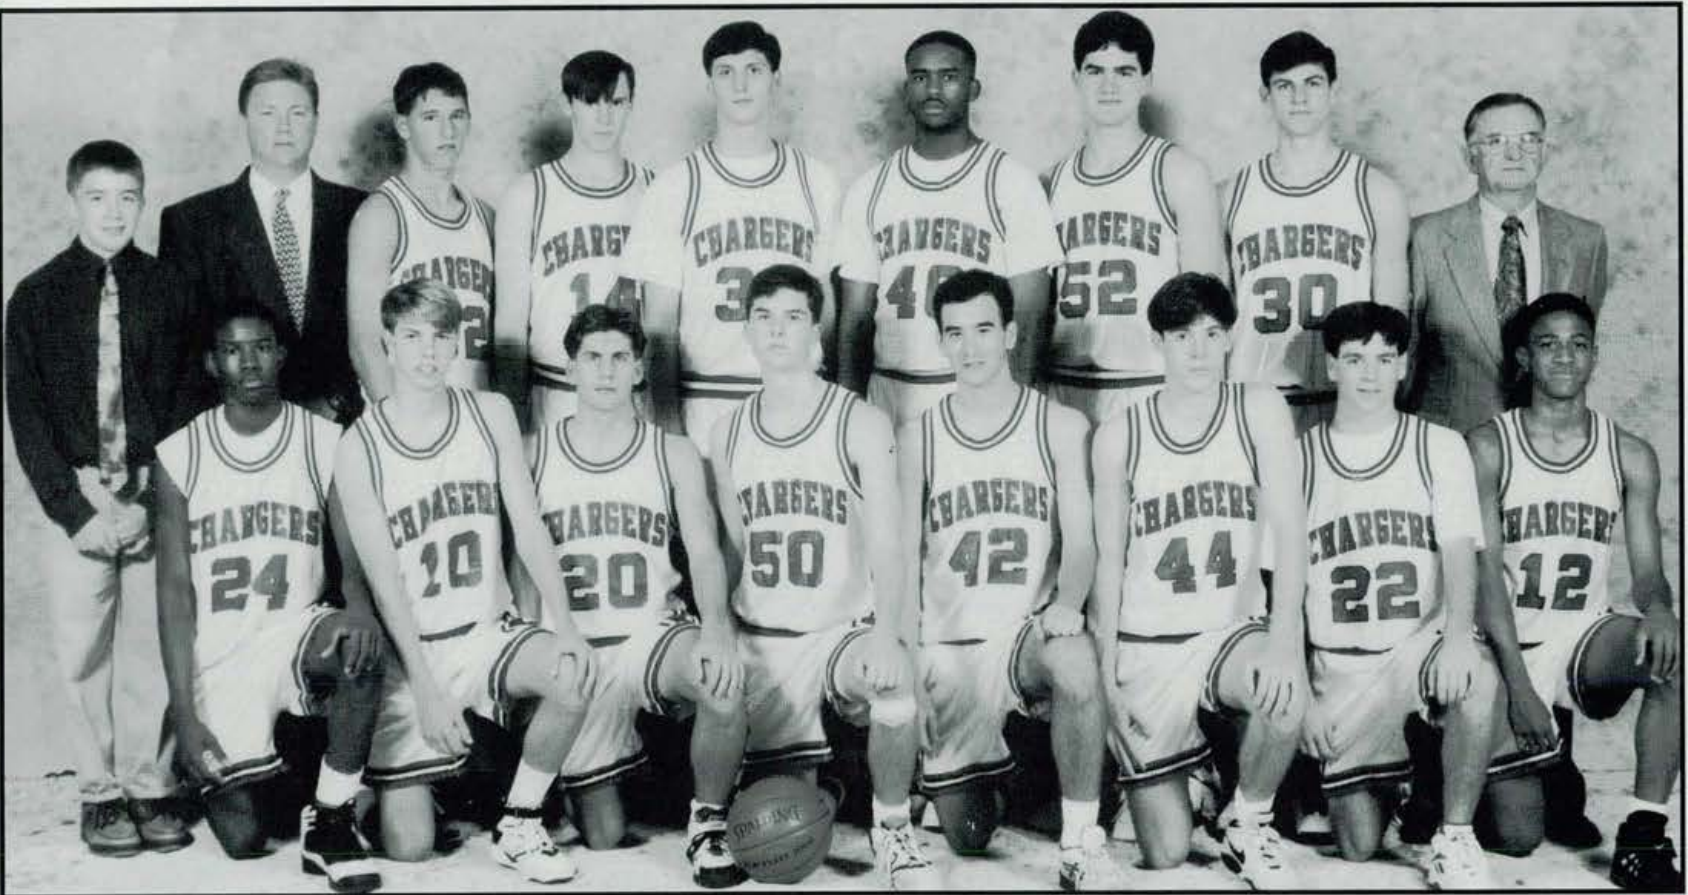

TOO SLOW! Dena Forcucci steals the opponents' pass and scores a basket, using her quickness and agility to her advantage.

Matthews

WHO'S OPEN? Senior guard Jessica Brooks looks for the open pass while displaying her tremendous dribbling skills.

Back Row: Patrick McCoy, Coach Carrier, Trent Cherry, Will Crowder, Greg Oswald, Davius Miller, Bill Monroe, Dwight Bodycott, Coach Price

GOING TO THE HOLE. Trent Cherry makes a quick move down the baseline, totally faking out his opponent. This was Trent's favorite move that he says he learned by watching the pros.

GOING TO WAR. Matt "The Magnet" McAuliffe does battle in the paint. Matt was known for his physical style of play because he wasn't afraid of contact.

Matthews

WHERE IS HE? Andrew Stark looks for an open man to pass to. When he couldn't find a teammate, he made the opponent pay by hitting a three.

Matthews

THE MAN IN THE MIDDLE. Davius Miller makes a power move over Rusty King of Christian. When Davius got the ball in the post he was virtually unstoppable.

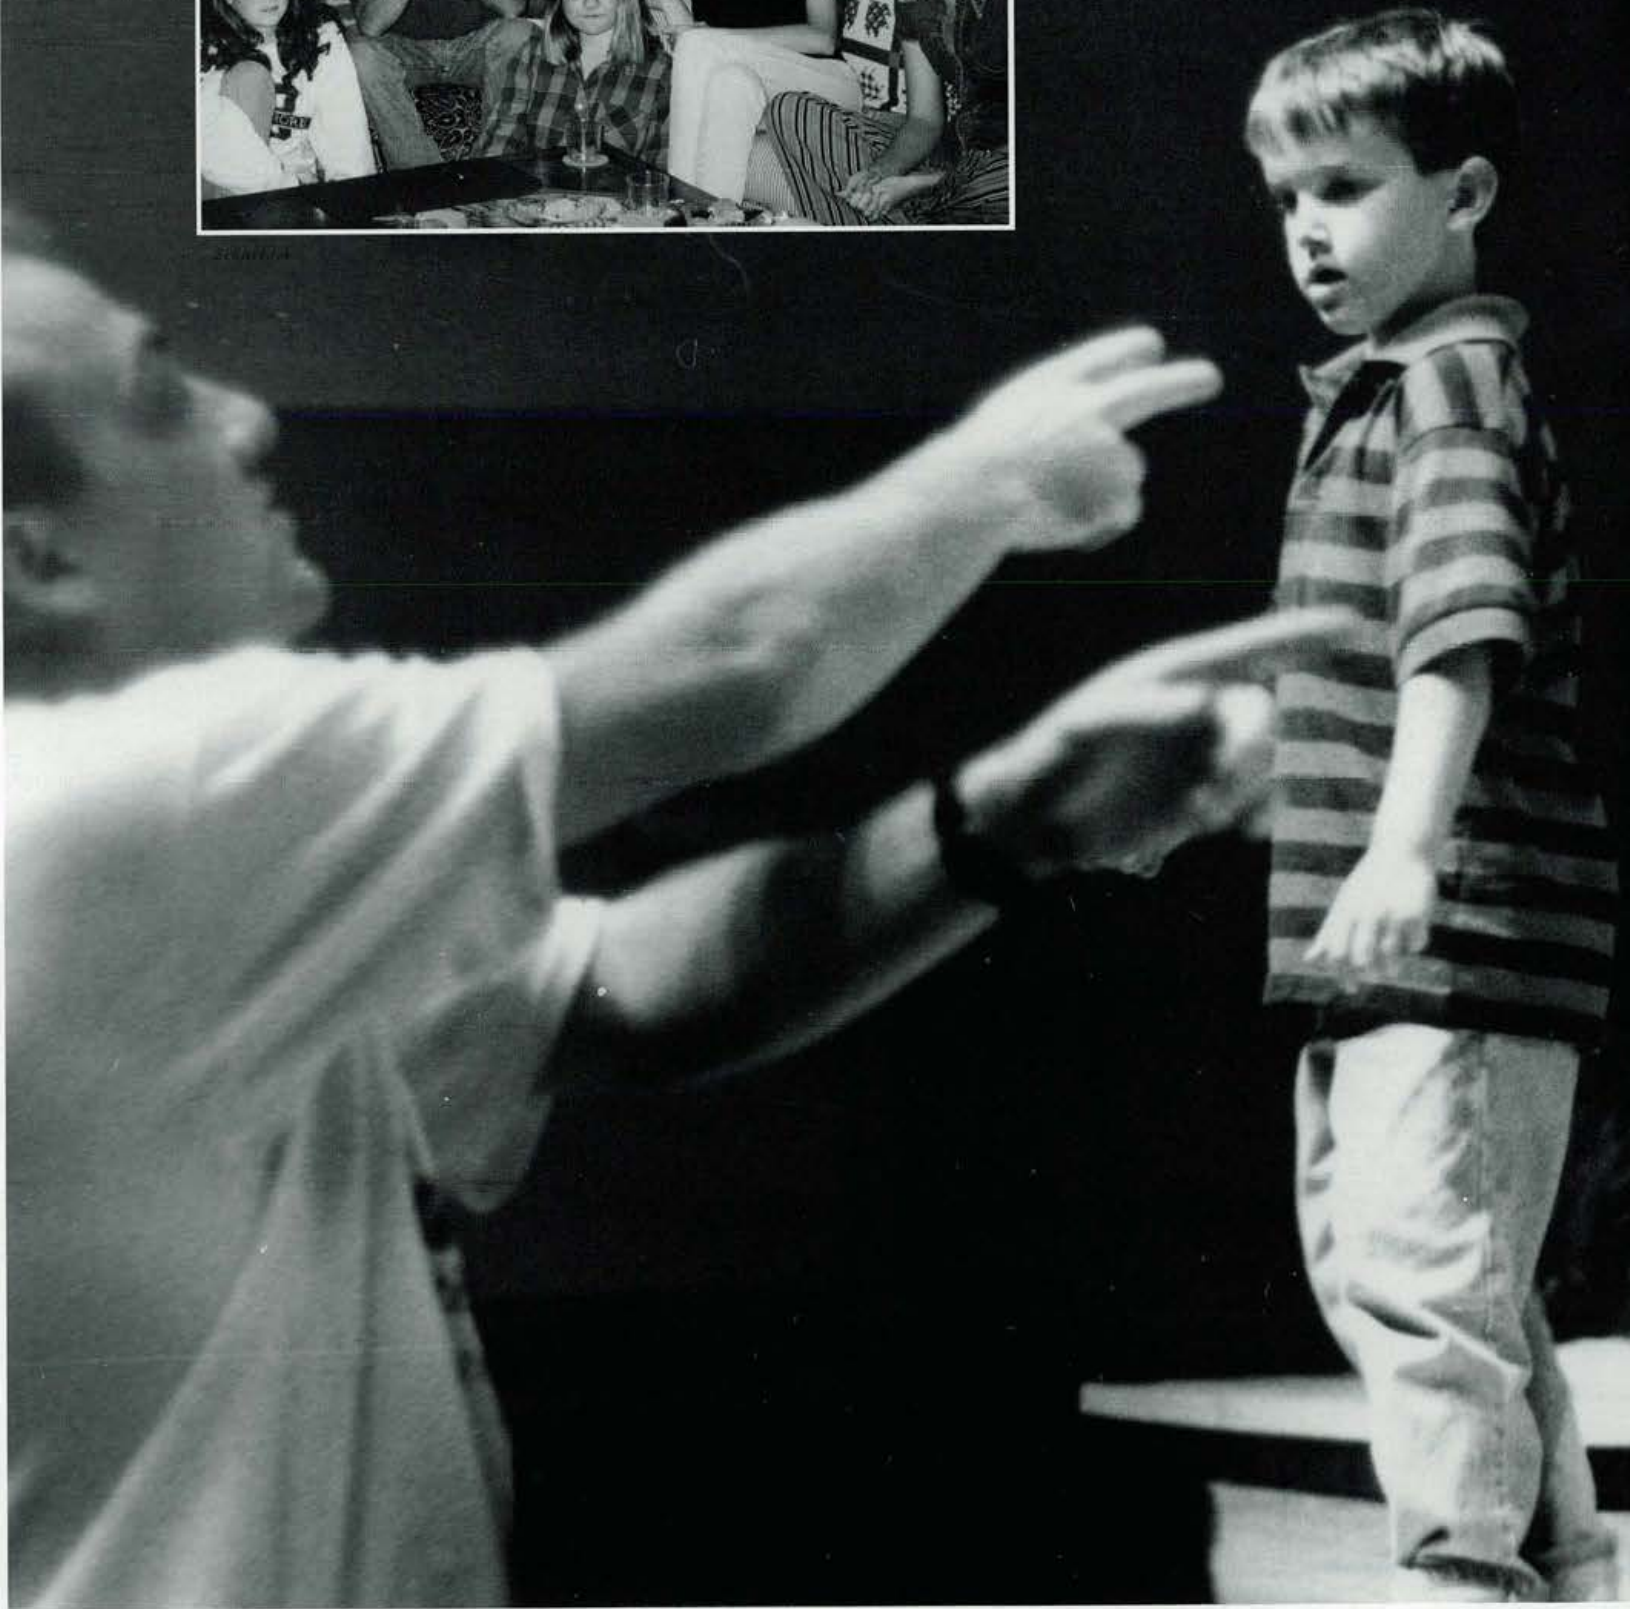

Matthews

HOW DID HE GET THAT OPEN? The opposition has just costed themselves three points by leaving Mark Schuler open for a jump shot. Mark was the team's most reliable scoring source this season.

"S.A.D.D. fact: 50% of all teenage deaths..." "National Honor Society members need to pay their dues..." Clubs at Providence Day range from honorary organizations like Beta Club and Cum Laude to service clubs like Keyettes and Key Club. The development of these clubs allows for everyone from Lower School to Upper School to become involved in helping both the community of the school and the community of Charlotte. It also allows students to challenge themselves when debating over specific issues or in learning more about the world abroad by travelling to Amsterdam. For twenty-five years the students of Providence Day have learned a lot sitting behind desks and listening to lectures. They have also experienced much by dedicating themselves to helping the less fortunate, learning about the environment and how we can help it, or expressing themselves through creative writing. After assemblies, during lunch, and after school students race around campus enquiring

PEOPLE

Lions and tigers and bears, oh my! At Providence Day one will not find the stereotypical private school person. One finds a widely diverse group of people who, like animals, are individually different and unique—not just in their appearances but in their beliefs and morals. Each person, from age five to age eighteen has his or her own place within the halls of Providence Day.

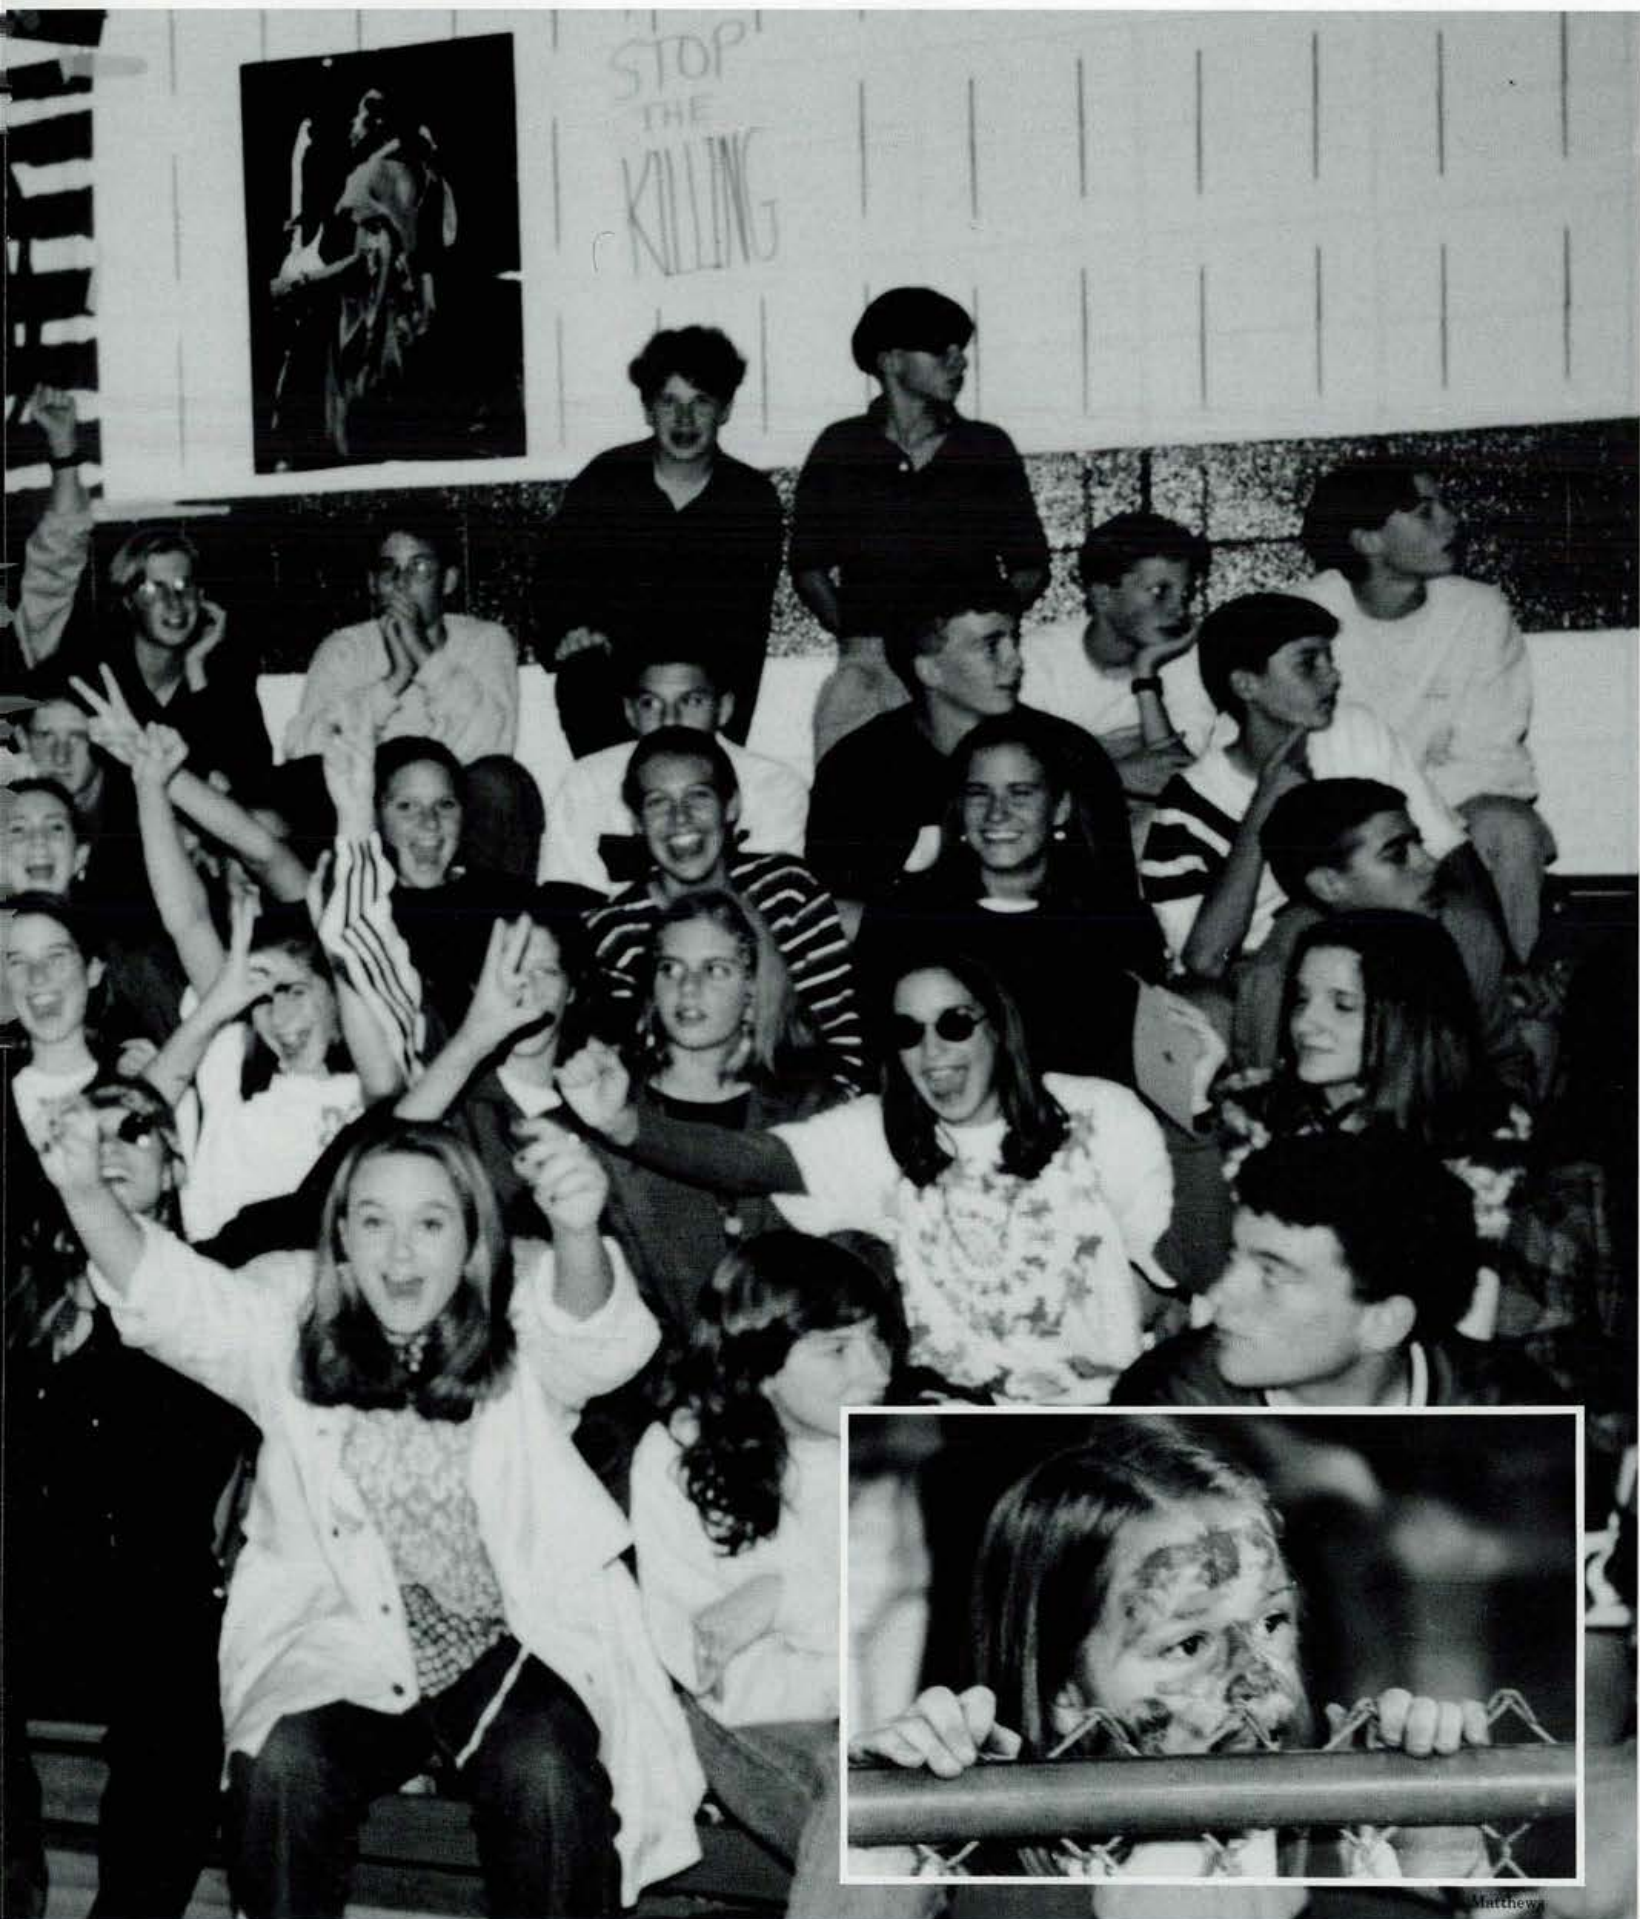

Twenty-five year ago the student body consisted of less than one hundred people. Today the population exceeds thirteen hundred students and faculty members. As the years have gone by, people have made their individual marks on the campus finding ways to aid both within the school community and outside of school. Our eclectic collection of unique personalities has blended together and helped the school change and grow into a place where we can build solid futures.

FACULTY COACHES

Field

What Are You Doing? Coach Finneyfrock watches his Varsity Soccer team demolish yet another opponent; silence on the side line was what Frock was known for.

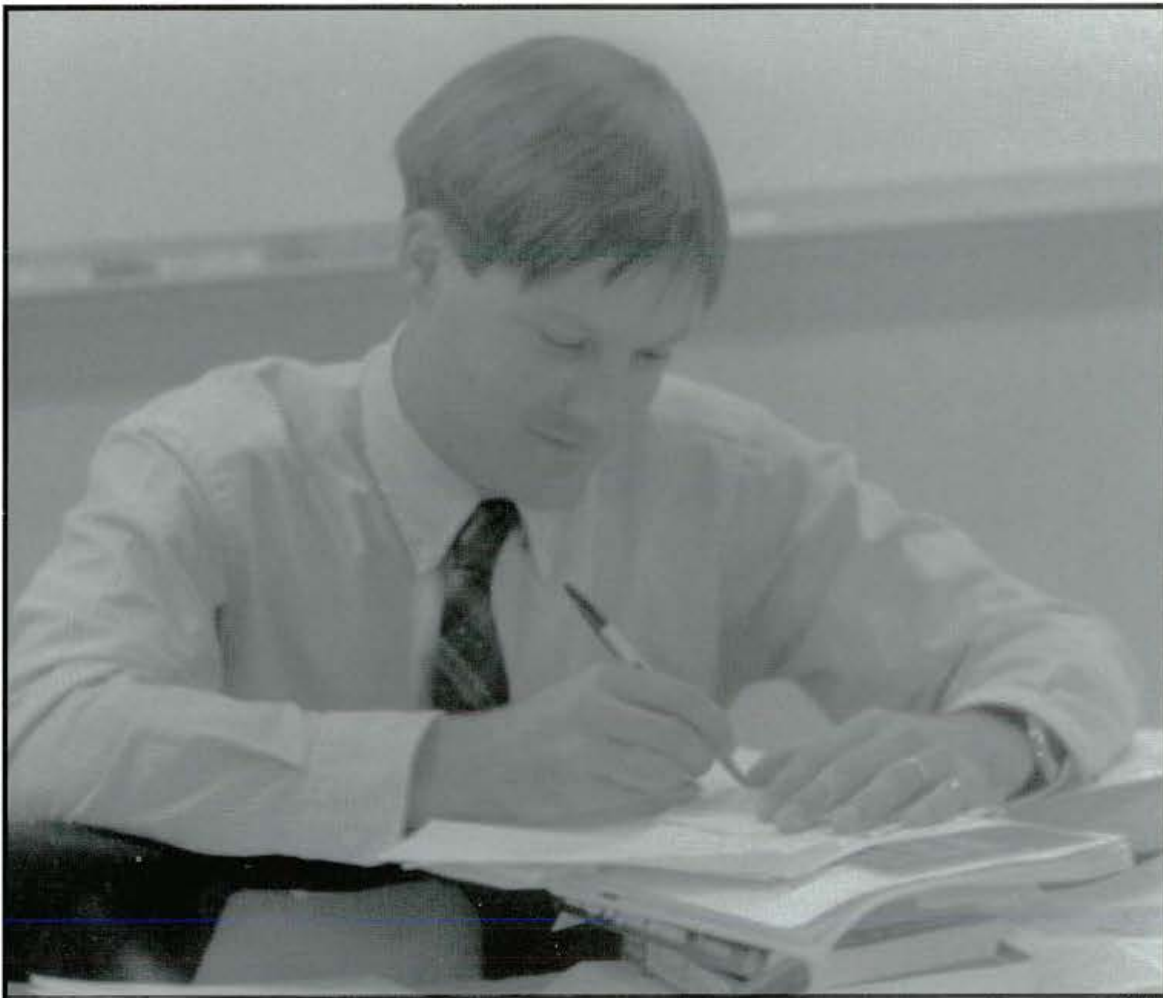

Field

Whatever You Need To Know. The athletic bulletin board helped players and coaches communicate when team meetings couldn't be held. The bulletin board was used by other organizations.

Field

Like This Honey? Gil and Linda Murdock add up the score at a cross country meet. Mr. Murdock was the first athletic director at Providence Day.

Field

Get To Work. Coach Dickson administers his basketball team's daily study hall. It was little things like this that made Mr. Dickson a players coach.

Time out!...Please take out a piece of paper for a quiz...Foul!...Homework for tonight is on page 274...On your marks...Any questions? The classroom is not the only place that faculty and administration can be found interacting with the students, but also in the afternoons when they are coaching their favorite sports. Dean of students, Mr. Mark Fader, remarked that "the most important part of an independent school is the role of faculty-coaches. Not only do the teachers see the student's ability in the classroom, but also their ability on the athletic field." The faculty can often be seen at most of the schools' athletic events supporting their pupils', cheering just as loud as the students and parents.

Most students do not realize that their teachers are usually on campus longer than they are on a normal school day. After the 3:05 dismissal, many stay after to conduct tutoring sessions for the next day's test, and then make a quick dash for practice. "Sometimes I find myself panicking when I see the clock read 3:45 and I know I have to be at practice at 3:55," commented Mr. Scott Heitmiller, coach of the J.V. soccer team. Even though there is a tremendous commitment that these faculty members have to make, Mr. Glen Hirshberg, coach of girls' softball, exclaimed, "I wouldn't have it any other way!" Students often don't realize that their teachers are here just as long or longer than they are, teaching and coaching.

WHERE'S DA WABBIT? Johanna Huddle gets to pat a bunny on her visit to Old Collin's Farm. The farm field trip was great learning experience for the kids.

Just to see the TKers, completely carefree, running around the playground is enough to bring back memories of one's own childhood. How nice it would be to be able to go back to TK, just for a day or so. The biggest hassle in our lives was taking a nap, and the thing that gave us the most joy was being the line leader for the day. And any problem we had could be cured with a hug or kiss. And how simple things were to us. When asked what his favorite color was, Josh Lipack replied, "Blue -- because I like it!" Abigail Hartman said that her favorite animal was a bunny, "because they're soft and cute." We didn't need a reason to smile or laugh, to be mean or nice. We had confidence in almost anything we said or did, and we could do anything if we really wanted to.

TKers have a very busy day, even though it only lasts until lunch time. Some of the highlights are finger painting, singing, aerobics, frequent field-trips, and board games, just to name a few! One of the most exciting field trips was the one to Old Collins Farm. Kids actually got to pet cows, horses, sheep, rabbits and chickens. They also got to play in the hay loft and go on a hayride.

Kids, never forget these years of your life, because this is as good as it gets!

SONG TIME. Kindergarten Spanish teacher, Mrs. Mountcastle, gets her students to become enthused about the language with a little singing. Did she have a good voice? Well, let's just say she's keeping her day job.

All I Really Need to Know...

Wilson SHOULD I MAKE THE DRAGON... purple or green? Elizabeth Anne Bryant pauses to muse about what hue to shade her fairy tale dragon. Some boxes of Crayolas, like Elizabeth Anne's, came with a built-in sharpener.

Wilson I MUST'VE LEFT IT IN MY CUB-BYHOLE. Anne Smith ran to her "Kindergarden locker" and luckily made it up and down the ladder.

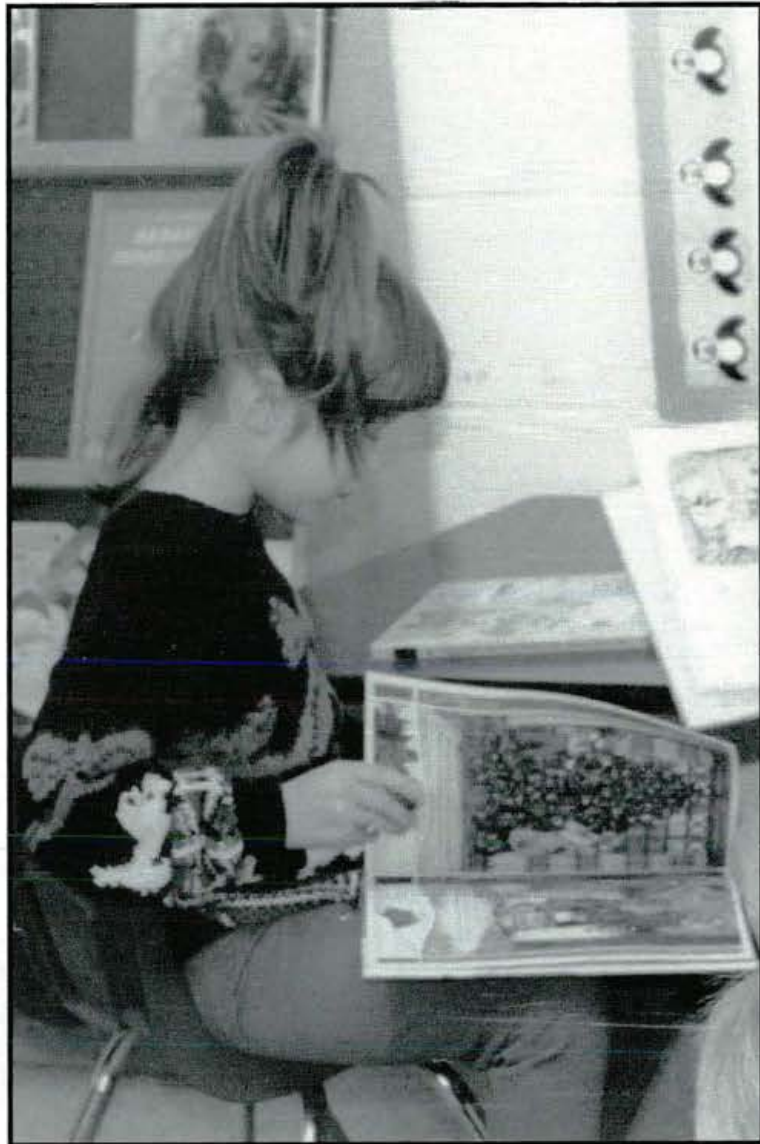

"The good old days," is how many students describe their year in kindergarten, a time where we didn't have to remember algebraic equations, just the right color to draw in the pictures. All you had to do was be nice to your neighbor and look before you crossed the street. School supplies? Well, you had to remember your box of crayons, maybe a gluestick, and your Barbie, Sesame Street, or Power Rangers lunchbox. Jace Jamil commented, "My Star Trek lunchbox is awesome, but sometimes my mom puts peanut butter and jelly sandwiches in it, and I hate those!" One of kindergarten's favorite activities was P.E. Then they got a chance to release all of the pent up energy they'd saved from sitting inside all day. "When we get to play snowman, it's really fun because you can peg balls at people," said Matthew Cox. Other favorite games included jump roping, medicine ball, and parachute. Robert Fulghum's philosophy proved correct: "All I really need to know, I learned in kindergarten." Stockton

Just Two Too Much!

The class of 2005 was privileged to enjoy many field trips and class excursions to places unknown when the school was young. Multiple field trips to the Discovery Place gave the children a chance to broaden their knowledge in subjects ranging from dinosaurs to the mystery that lies within the rainforests. "The first field trip we took to the Discovery Place was really neat," says Hillary Braun. Aside from the field trips, second graders worked hard getting ready to strut their stuff for Grandparent's Day, learning not only to expand on their own vocabulary in English, but also in two other languages: Spanish and French, and just leaving all the day's lessons behind to enjoy the best part of the day: recess! Second grade was once thought of as a time where kids only worries were what new game to play at recess or who had the better lunch. Now these cute, adorable kids are showing that there is never too too much they can do. Sale

GHOSTS, GOBLINS, AND GHOULS...well, not really. Third graders pause for a picture before embarking upon the Halloween parade. This would be their last year of parading around school to show off their Halloween costumes.

I'M RICH! I'M RICH! Third graders busily pan for gold at the Reed Gold Mine. Third graders anticipated this annual trip for the "prospect" of finding real gold chips.

Third and Long

Every year the third graders have a super year, and this year was no exception. They enjoyed many field trips including Discovery Place, James K. Polk memorial, Reed Gold Mine and the Vulcan Rock Quarry. At Reed Gold Mine the students enjoyed panning for gold. Only about one half dozen out of the 78 student class found gold! At the Vulcan Rock Quarry they enjoyed two dynamite blasts which they talked about for days afterwards. They also enjoyed looking for rocks and found plenty of different varieties. Some even came home with bookbags full of rocks!

They also enjoyed speakers. For Kids Voting, Mr. Fader and Mr. Dickson came and spoke on the importance of voting. The children filled out sample ballots, making the right choice on Election Day. Richard Vinroot also spent a day with the third graders discussing the aspects of being a mayor. At publishing parties, the students read stories they had written to visiting parents and classmates. The parents always enjoyed hearing the work that their children spent so much time in creating, and marveled at the hand bound books. Mrs. Rutherford recalled one story which was presented by the student as a very serious tale. It was about a fish that turned into a wolf, and without any warning, the wolf went to hang out at a sports bar. Upon hearing this, the students' parents doubled over with laughter. The third graders outdid themselves with humor and amusement. Evans

4 Is Always Better

N.T. Smith

AND THE ANSWER IS... Daniel Wheelock tackles an assignment on the formation of metamorphic rocks. These rocks changed in form due to environmental conditions.

The most popular thing in the fourth grade this year seemed to be "to go out" with someone. This really meant that a boy and a girl were friends and ate lunch together, not actually dated. But if this happened to any guy they would probably be the most popular person in the grade. The couple would usually spend all their time together during school. After a while they would go out with someone else.

If it wasn't the who is going out with who everyone was talking about then it was about the field trips they took. The trips this year ranged from a trip to the Discovery Place and a hike up to the Sheile Museum to learn in detail about the Native Americans and the backcountry. Mrs. Jordan remarked, "This was probably the more popular trip among the children, and the teachers. Indians are always a favourite with the students, as well as the teachers.

O'Neill

LOOK HERE! Two fourth graders graph the results of their hot dog taste test. Regardless of which weenie was most popular, fourth graders concluded Ball Parks still plump when you cook 'em!

It's true we all loved to play Cowboys and Indians when we were little—even our teachers.

But fourth graders learned that other children around the world play different games to celebrate their diverse holidays. Mrs. Fader's Homeroom class had a special speaker come and talk about the meaning of Hanukkah. She taught them the game of dreidel, a Hannukah gambling game.

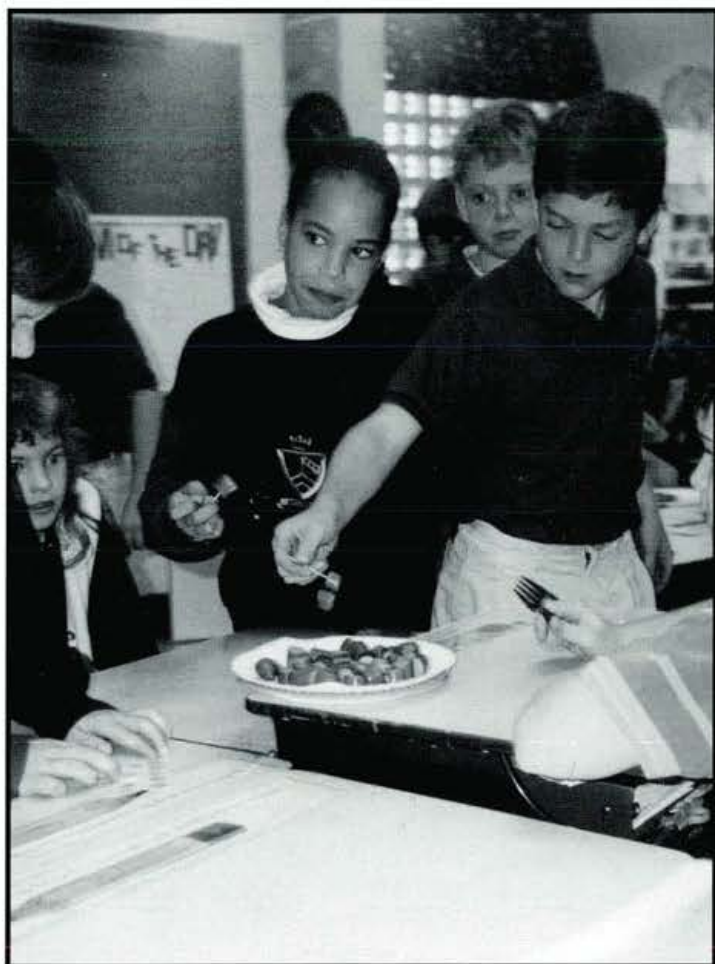

To further their celebration, the fourth graders also spent time in Old Salem and took part in a colonial Christmas festival there.

"This year was probably my favorite year of school," commented Holly Heller; "I wouldn't mind taking it over again." Anderson

N.T. Smith

TAKE THAT! K.T. McLeod attempts to give her friend Holly Heller a good whack upside the head. Luckily, Holly dodged in time!

O'Neill

Wilson

DREIDEL TIME! Derrick Thompson gets ready to spin his dreidel during a special class about Hanukkah and its meaning. In twentieth century America, however, children gambled for Corn Pops instead of gold coins.

GIMME THAT WEENIE! A group of the fourth graders try their share of hot dogs during an experimental taste test to see which was the all around best hotdog. They tested nutrition value, cost, and, most importantly, taste.

Caudill

BRRR! This group of sixth graders is deciding whether they want to join the polar bear club. Some decided to be a little rebellious and walk barefooted through the stream while others just sat and watched.

Over the Mountains and Through the Woods...

This year, the sixth grade took a break from school and headed on a two and a half hour trip to the Green River Preserve. The trip was based on a book they read called Little Tree. During one part of the trip, all of the sixth graders sat in a circle and learned about the education of Little Tree. Storytelling was not the only part of the trip; there were many fun activities, as well. The students sang Native American music, studied ecology, went on creek walks, hikes and went caving. The most favored activity, though, was the climbing wall.

Caudill
DON'T LOOK DOWN! Erin Boyles shows her great skill by climbing this wall as well as posing for a quick picture.

Emily Evans said, "The food was very good and the sleeping arrangements were nice, but it got very, very, very cold at night!" There was a huge fireplace where many students were found warming up at night! This trip was a great experience for the sixth grade. They learned a little bit about the history of the Appalachian mountains and had fun with the activities and music! When asked if they would want to go back, the respond from the sixth graders was almost always, "Definitely!" Negri

Caudle

STUCK IN THE MIDDLE

One more year until I can be atop the middle school, but there's just one thing, I don't know if I can wait that long! I still have to wait outside to go into the dining hall, I have to wait for the eighth graders to leave assembly before I can get out of my seat, but there is one advantage, I'm not the sixth graders anymore! This year I can play my favorite sport, take my favorite elective, and still be with my favorite friends. Grant Porter remarked, "Seventh grade is a ton better than sixth grade was. This year I don't have to be a ball-boy for the soccer team, I can actually play on the soccer team!" The class also supported all of their peers that played various sports by attending the games and cheering as loud as they could. "I really enjoyed going to all of the games to see all of my friends. I really got to know everyone better just by watching them play their favorite sport", explained Katie Brunow. The seventh graders annual class trip to Camp Seafarer is also different from the trips they've had in the past. Seafarer beginnings to develop the personalities of the people in the grade that will help them through their future years in Upper School. Team-work drills and trust games institute the values in the class that will make the Class of 2000 unique. Kathryn Monroe commented, "It is remarkable to see how our class has really pulled together this year. In the past, we've had alot of little groups, but this year we've really come together as a class." They can always just hold out one more year until their big eighth grade year when they can rule the middle school, and then just one more year until they begin Upper School, but until then they're stuck in the middle. - Lawson

Burgoon HERE, CATCH. Seventh grade guys through around a frisbee after lunch. Other activities students participated in after lunch were basketball and gossiping.

WHAT ARE WE WAITING FOR? Patrick McCoy and his teammates get ready to go in to the pep rally on Homecoming. Many eighth graders liked to represent their school by being on sports teams.

ARE YOU SERIOUS?? Whitney Kirby and Katie Keniry gossip about what was going on in their class that day. Who was going out with who was a big topic in the eighth grade.

I CAN'T WAIT TO GO TO CLASS! Stevan Beer joins his friends in social Studies class. The rels were a great place to catch up on everything that was going on.

WHAT'S SO FUNNY? Some of the eighth grade guys joke around during lunch. This was a good time for students to hang out and talk.

Keyell

The boy walked past the line of students waiting outside of the dining hall. He didn't worry about having to stand there for fifteen minutes because he was one of the oldest students in the middle school. He had waited for this moment ever since the beginning of his sixth grade year, and he was finally here.

This was how many of the eighth graders felt. They were at the top of the middle school, and they enjoyed every minute of it. "I love going into the assembly and walking straight to the front. The younger kids are so jealous of us!" exclaimed Mariana Pundsack.

Eighth grade was also a year of reflection for many of the students. They knew what it was like to be the oldest, but they realize that next year they will be the youngest. "I am having so much fun in eighth grade, but I know that I will be back at the bottom of the barrel in upper school next year," replied Elise Matthews.

Overall, eighth graders seem pretty happy to be where they are right now. ...When the boy passed the younger kids in line in front of the dining hall, a seventh grader was heard whispering something to his friend; "I can't wait until next year!"

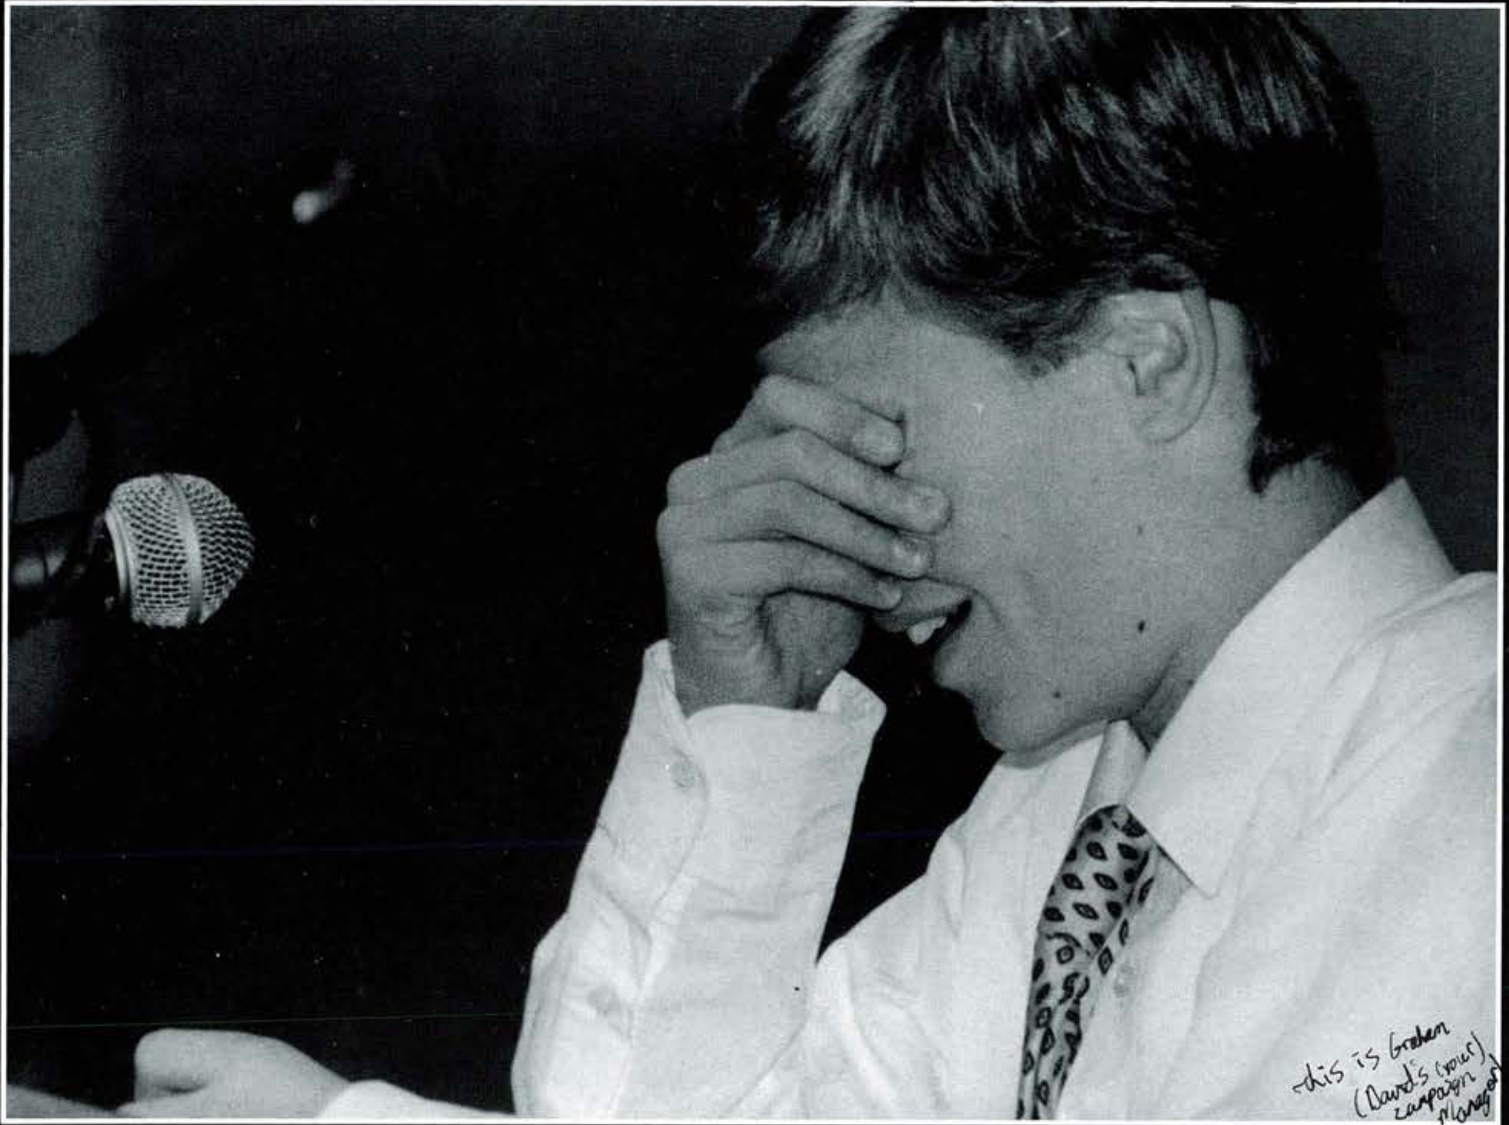

Hodgkins

Keyell

WHAT A PRETTY PICTURE! Laura Buchanan draws a picture to go with her story in Art class. There were times that eighth graders needed to get away from everyone and have some time to themselves.

Movin' On Up

Wow, I can't believe I'm finally here. It's so different, last year I was the big guy in the middle school, and now I feel so small. Now is when everything starts to count like my grades. The pressure's on.

One of the highlights of being freshmen is getting to go to Washington. Scott Hinson thinks that he may see the President on one of his morning jogs. "I can't wait to go! Even though there's a long bus trip, it will be really fun," remarked Kate Conover.

In the past the freshmen have gone to Kanuga. For a change, this year Kanuga came to them. They participated in the leadership activities and learned to work as a group. Many enjoyed participating in teambuilding exercises. Not only did these activities give them a chance to get out class for the day, but also were an opportunity to meet others in their grade that they did not usually hang out with during the school day.

"Well, I made it through my first day as an official high school student. It wasn't as bad as I thought it'd be. But it's going to take some getting used to!"

Johnson

WRAP IT UP. David Thompson and Mike Sollie find themselves stuck together. At the Kanuga Leadership workshop, ninth graders were able to bond with new people who they did not normally "stick" to.

Furman

VERITABLE CHAOS. Ninth graders gather in the Puett-Francis foyer before their first assembly. They couldn't wait to get inside and have their first taste of the Upper School.

Furman

CLASSIC CONCENTRATION. Ninth graders take notes diligently during a speech at the Kanuga Leadership workshop. Ninth graders learned how to evolve into instrumental parts of the Upper School at this workshop.

LEAD, FOLLOW OR GET OUT OF THE WAY! Paige Yurachek, Melissa Chick, Chris Jelstrup, and Shara McGee work on listing the Presidents in order. This activity helped them build teamwork skills during their Kanuga Leadership workshop.

Blackwell

Blackwell

IT'S A GREAT STRESS RELIEVER! Emily Bolt executes a handstand to get her blood flowing. Although she did not compete in gymnastics, her handstand skills were those of a pro.

Arnold

Blackwell

YOUR FACE MIGHT STICK LIKE THAT. Bored in study hall, Jared Patterson entertains his classmates with a sly look. Jared was known for his antics.

PENNY PITCHERS. Freshman Andrew Pleasant, Brandon McLaren and Jason Kirby gamble away their spare change at lunch. Really now boys, isn't gambling against school rules?

Blackwell

Blackwell

DOES NOT COMPUTE! Doug Haines studies his math test and quickly becomes confused. Algebra jargon is nearly always difficult to understand.

Blackwell

HO-HUM. Freshmen Algebra I students struggle to pay attention. They tried hard, but solving equations wasn't always as easy as they thought!

Just Having Fun

Being in the tenth grade is a unusual experience for many. Students are no longer the youngest in the upper school and yet they are still not all old enough to drive. This can be a very frustrating situation for many. Carson Porter commented that, "I wish I had my own car to drive in to school everyday. When someone gets their first car it is the so awesome because they have so much freedom. I just don't want to have to pay for gas." Carson's mentality is quite common as for the sophmores' attitudes toward cars and driving. Though some tenth graders with licenses were lucky enough to be able to drive their parents' cars to dances and other formal occasions. This can be a very scary and nerve racking experience. "I always ask my dad if I can drive his car. He always says no, but I just can't wait for the day when he says that I can take it for a little spin!" said Zach Goodyear. The younger tenth grade drivers may not have the experience that the older students have being in the drivers seat, but they are all aware of the precautions that need to be taken when driving. "I am so scared about getting in a wreck or getting a ticket. That has kind of forced me into being a safe driver," Shannon Hill commented. The driving experience may be new to many tenth graders, but surely it will become as routine as studying for math quizzes. Lincoln

Cherry

He is so weird! Anna Casstevens, Ginny Hollmeyer, and Missy Sheaff tease Michael Brooks about his english accent at lunch.

SENIORS

Applications, deadlines, poinsettias, pictures, where to go for lunch...should I do my homework?, Senior Venture, the lounge... Senior year is filled with many worries. Not the normal worries about what to wear and gossip, but bigtime worries about college, friends, endings, and beginnings. This is a time for the stress and pressure of meeting deadlines, but also the time we realize that this is our last year together. We must look ahead into our futures and make important decisions which will affect the rest of our lives. But the rush of memories forces us to look behind and reflect on what we were and what we will become. So as the Class of 1995, we hope to make it an extremely memorable year, not only for ourselves, but for everyone else whose lives we have touched. We say to you...

Jennifer P. & Susan: Jen, stay just the way you are 'cause you're perfect. If someone doesn't like you, it's their loss. Susan, remember the football game.
Hal: That was funny!
 Just be careful (especially with your parents!)
Yasmina: How ya'll doin?
Jamie W.: too bad we didn't get to know each other better, but who knows what the future was in store for us.
 Now, tell me again, what happens after they turn into rocks?
Brandon: You're a cool guy, Brandon, and I hope you stay that way. You look fine, so stop touching your hair. Remember, you can always count on me for a ride.
Marc: when is my flight scheduled for? I had a lot of fun at your house that night. I hope we can do it again some time. Don't lose touch with me.

Remember that night at Tricia's?
Fran: I'm gonna miss all those early morning fights on the way to school. Always remember to be yourself. And remember "keep your feet on the ground, but keep reaching for the stars."
ML: I saved the best for last. There are a few yet very important rules I must inform you about:
 1. Cars don't need maintenance.
 2. If you put new oil in with the old it will eventually all be new (that's not an oil change because that would be maintenance), and last but not least when you pick up the phone & it's not for you, you say, "Sah!" "really fast", hang up.
 I'm gonna miss you a whole, whole lot! Don't forget about our best friends Ron & Manna, though! Good Dab, Michele! And remember, you're not allowed to go out with any boys unless mommy has met them! Oh, and of course, no trips to Auntie Em's house! When are we going to see my cousin Angelo that goes to UNC-Wilmington?

R.N.: Thank for having more confidence in me than I had in myself to be #1 in Conference and States, look out for the 'algae' - Pepper sends his regards! - Take it easy, you'll be a senior before you know it - it's not too bad, Relax, remember "cross country runners do it better in the woods!"
R.M.: Mondays aren't they a blast? The perfect Date - Yute!!! 4 a.m. talks, B.B. life would be NO fun otherwise what would you rant and rave about? It's been fun - thank for being a friend and all the coffee!
M.M.: YOU ARE HOT!! black eye, bruised knees - love those fences, doors, walls, etc., Gov't - remember those "position" laws - never know when they might come in handy! D.C. - fun wasn't it? Teasing C.H. - she is a blond you know! Taco Bell - was it 32 tacos? Massages ALL over - want one? Thank fr being a friend and I'll miss you (but not my bruises!)
H.H.: Give my love to Louie - I will never forget him!!! Saturday nights, ice cream cones and Baskin Robbins, Le Mignons File - Preferred Stock Guy, Brad Pitt, Tom Cruise, Keanu Reeves - did I forget anyone? Oh, yeah, Dean Cain, calculator wars, Charlotte Marathon (5:45 a.m.) - remind me to thank that guy for losing his cokes in our chisel. What was his name, you heart breaker? Jeff? We survived 4th, amazing, huh? Thank for being a friend and always being so cheerful to make my day better!
C.H.: Hey, isn't Matt HOT? Ice cream cones and Baskin Robbins - they're coming - Yes, I think he'd notice - $20 bet? - Le Mignon File count? No deep sounds good to me! cute guys? Sugar Mtn? I'm there! Taco Bell - How many? 32? Helloooo Nurse! Legends of the Fall - Drool Bucket anyone? Brad Pitt, Keanu Reeves, not bad, huh? instructional videos, grab, twist, and pull - he might like part of it - look out! Thank for listening to me rant and rave-it means a lot and always being there to make me laugh and lighten everyone up a little!
P.S.: was that massage ALL over? B.N.: Summer time, Jeep, gravel road, corn field, disco - YMCA, entertained everyone! From night - powdered sugar and strawberries, all nighter, cross country - guess you just aren't built like a runner - oh well there are worse things in life! Thank for being a friend!
C.Y.: Never follow H.H. - she has a terrible sense of direction, disco, YMCA, entertained everyone! bagels Well, it's been a long trip but it's over!! Thank for being a friend!!
Mr. Murdock: Thank you for everything! I couldn't have done it without you! I'll come and visit the team next year and keep in touch! Thank again!
All my teachers: Thank you for a nice five years, I'll never forget them! To my parents - Thank you for all your support and encouragement. I love you very much!! Dad, thank you for always being there as my own personal coach to encourage me before every run and for being my own personal photographer! Mom, thank you for helping me all those years with my papers, etc. and come visit me-we'll go shopping! I love you!

"Our birth is but a sleep and a forgetting:
 The soul that rises with us, our life's a star,
 Hath had elsewhere its setting,
 And cometh from afar:
 Not entire forgetfulness
 And not in utter nakedness,
 But trailing clouds of glory do we come
 From God, who is our home:
 Heaven lies about about us in our infancy!"

Jamie: Keep riding and always remember to follow the light. Cue ball, footballs. You know you'll always love Sara. OK son spread um! You've always been a good friend, and I thank you for that, but I'll always be the ping pong champion.

Rob: All Madden All Time, If you thought you were busted would you turn around? Rolling Revelle, Hampden Sydney, and everything else we've done since kindergarten. I hope we never lose touch, the I wouldn't have anyone to play Sega with me!

Alison: You've been everything I could ask for in a friend. You stuck by me through the rough times and held my hand through the tragic times. You are the joy in my life, and I'll always love you.

John: Remember 4-wheeling for the first time and jumping? That was pretty stupid wasn't it? The rig we set up for my fish tank, thanks for killing my coral and using my fish for food! You've always been generous and a good friend.

Bryan: I know one day I'll see you driving a Cruiser! You'll always be my Bronco 2 buddy. Take care of my eel.

Robert: Karate fights, fish tanks, and B-ball at Jamie's

Ellen: I can always look to you for advice and a smile. You are direct, aren't you?

Dena: Sorry about your dog! Painting worms and the Indian ring I gave you, snowball fights with Tom, Brice, and Molly, street baseball, the time Steve, Patrick, and I creamed your cars and got caught! I'll never forget the fun times we've had.

Bret: Yes, Hey Mon!

Nate: Have you gone over the Yo and Nosotros in Spanish A yet? Anybody for some rumpleforeskin? You mastered the five minute per week workout! Remember that bodyslam in JV? Hey, Let's get it in for Chargers!

Elisabeth: Don't worry, but these grades will decide the next five years of your life!

Andrew S: Playing tennis at deuce for two hours, basketball-30-30 forever! Hook shot! You guys understand over there? Nope, Clueless. The Skylark going 10 in a 45 zone. Deli Queen. Would you do that? Of course, Two thumbs up!

Clint: Badminton partner: champions! What up? Peace!

Dean: If you hit me in the nads one more time, I'll kill you!

Ivy: Congratulations on Carolina, good luck there!

Marc: Call me up anytime, we'll go riding.

Mary: Hornets game with Monty, Gold locket

Jen: It was Chucky Cheeze! Barbie dolls, Bike riding

Katie: Roger Rabbit!

Andrew C.: Oh my God, we are going to die!

Dad & Mom: Thanks for all your support and encouragement. It means a lot to me!

David: Yes, I graduated! Thanks for all of your criticism.

"Yesterday's over my shoulder, so I can't look backward too long. There's just too much to see waiting in front of me, and I know that I can't go wrong.....with all of my running and all of my cunning. If I couldn't laugh I just could go insane." Jimmy Buffett

JS-You have been through many good and not so good times with me over the past four years, but I wouldn't trade that for anything. Even if we don't go to the same college, I still expect a fishing trip every year. Good luck and thank you for being a friend. I doubt if I will ever forget you.
AC-You and your family have been great friends for most of my life. I hope to see much more of all of you in the future. Thanks.
RM-Even though we met under unusual circumstances, WRESTLEMANIA! You have become a dear friend. Thanks to you and your parents' wisdom. Stay in touch. I guess only you, me, Chuck, and AC know who really was left standing the cornfield that day. Just kidding. Good luck!
CK-Thanks for the long talks, and your friendship. I know I will be seeing more of you next year when we break in the town of Charleston together., until then.
To the rest of my friends and classmates: Thank you for the memories. I wish you all the best of luck in whatever you do, and I hope to see all of you in ten years for the Anniversary.
To my Mom, Dad, Jim, Karen, and even Courtney: It has been a great eighteen years. Thank you for helping me to become the person I think I want to be. I love you all.

B's Philosophy of Life:
Live one day at a time. Don't worry about things you can't change. Don't get too caught up in the bull--- of life: you might miss something important. Always treat people like you would want to be treated. Most of all, remember the key to a good life is no stress, or in my case no stress.

Dean Henderson

Jess- Late night driving sessions. Many thanks for everything. Even though we've had our ups and downs, I don't think I could have had a better host. P.S. Jamy Wamie just kidding. All the best! Love, Dean

Andrew S.- Hey Drew, Squirrel, squirrel. Sorry I always beat you at ping pong and pool. Don't forget about Big Red. Keep the memory going. Amy who, Kristen who, what? Just remember life's a long highway and I just can't avoid Roadkills. Thanks for being a good friend and take care of yourself.

Clint- Thanks for introducing me to the toy even though I can do it quicker and more than you can. All the fishing expeditions even though my fish were bigger and better. Thanks for being another good friend and the only one who could keep up with me. P.S. How's Shannen doing?

Ellen- When can I borrow your dad's tape? Hope your driving will improve. Thanks for the tennis practice. Sorry I beat you so bad. Thanks for everything. Good Luck in college and be happy

Mary Rogers-Dookie, Remember all the card games even though you cheated. Thanks for all the intelligent questions you asked about England. You're still the dumbest person I've ever met. But good luck in whatever you do and thanks for the friendship.

Jennifer- Thanks for all the stories-one for every occasion. You've got massive * oops my bad. Just kidding. You're another one who cheated at cards, but I'll forgive you maybe! Good luck in college and in life. I know you'll do well. P.S. Not all men are pigs just English ones!

Garrett- What's up G? Yea Dude, Yea Black. Thanks for making me laugh so much and teaching me all I know about soccer. Be careful and I know you'll be happy in what ever you do.

Phipps- Relax- take a tablet. yet another Big Red fan. Maybe you'll get yourself a woman next year, doubt it. Just take things easy and enjoy them for God's Sake!

Scott E.- Early fishing expeditions. Sorry for flipping your dad off. Thanks for the fight. Just Kidding. Take Care, and be happy.

Brett- Another fisherman, nice technique too. Many Friday and Saturday nights sipping! Even though your dad always knew what we were up to. Good Luck.

John Stephens- Thanks for the fishing and tubing. Sorry about your toilet. Maybe you will stop selling people out next year. Good luck in college.

Dena- Thanks for all your parties, Pool, etc... Sorry I called you Blossom when I first met you at Senior Venture. Thanks for all the tabs you collected. I'm sure they will come in handy. Take care and Good luck!

Nathaniel- 3rd period- think you need to ask your dad about lifting weights with the big boys. Got to go and give someone a ride. Good luck in everything you do.

Sean- sorry for sacking you all the time even though I thought you were the star soccer player at senior venture. So take care from that Fg English Bd.

Frock- Thanks for getting me here and for all you've done for me! Sorry about the P.K at Greenboro and the Red Cards. You're a great coach and I'm sure you'll have plenty of success in the future. All the best and again, Thanks, Dean

--I can't think of my friends without wanting to give them the kind of joy their friendship gives me. I've tried (and always will) to be as wonderful as a friend to them as they have been to me, but that proves almost impossible sometimes. I wish to tell each and every one of them: "The Lord bless you and keep you; the Lord make His face shine upon you and be gracious to you; the Lord turn His face toward you and give you peace." --Numbers 6:24-26

...That's also for my family who I love VERY much. I can't begin to comprehend all they do for me. They allow me to experience life at my own pace, have warm embraces waiting for me, calm reassurance when I feel inadequate, and an unflinching love to accept and guide me. Somehow, they ask nothing of me in return. I'd give them anything.

Love You Bye Bye! --Cricka

Well my high school years are over and the two years spent here at Providence Day have proven to be a very learning experience; even though I didn't like the school's environment, it put forth a lot of things that will help me along my journey through life. A lot of these things came from my friends (my Boyz) and to ya'll I'd like to say:

To Ricky: You're a newcomer to the Fellas and you have shown a lot of athletic talent. Don't ever sell yourself short and don't try to ever play the game all alone. You're only one man so don't sweat it...Oh, yeah don't call me "Pimp Daddy" To Brendan: I'd say that you can ball pretty good and maybe better than me. But I still think you are too cocky, so "Cocky Theze." To Jared: You're a veteran like me and you'll know what I mean when I say keep strong don't be deceived and always "get yours..." No I ain't "Shady." To Benza: "One Love Fool" yeah I'm on that level. So I guess you told me a lot of things that showed me new things. Keep kicking that "George Jetson Fantastic Stuff". Oh, my bad, you ain't "ready for that kid." To Davius: Last but not least "Mr. Hilfiger himself" you know you phat to def and you'll always be my boy but you really need to stop bugging me and j-an when we kicking it cause I'll send that check later on. I bet you "hear that." Peace out. Oh yeah, I don't like that guy in Philadelphia... To all those people at Providence Day that did not like me I want to say thanks for being an inspiration to always be me.

"Most folks look upon militance as a violent way of thinking. I see it as a powerful instrument when accompanied with an education." - Herbert M. James, Jr.

"For each new day brings new challenges, and accomplishments which will raise you up to a new level. Use each new day to enrich your mind with new experiences and criticism. Even though you stop growing in height, you are always growing brighter in the mind." -- JRL

To my friends

Chuck- Where in the world did Stumpy come from? Nate- You know just as well as I do that it is impossible for the South to rise again. The North RULES!! - M. Straz- You'll never slap me? Greg- Soccer and Baseball was fun. " While you're in there don't steal anything!"- S. Kincaid- I leave you my best friend!- Tripp- You are a born Northerner. I leave you with another pair of pants. You're other ones are bound to get dirty soon or later- Beth- It's been fun. Remind me never to go to "First Night" again. Cards, Cards, Cards- Tim- You are the true American. I'm glad I got to know you before you go back up to Canada. - J. Parnell- You made Choir livable. Thanks. Good luck next year. Hint- Live Life To The Fullest - J. Wollin- I was there, but I didn't see it or hear it. - Katie- Boston was a lot of fun. I leave you with a lifetime supply of sunscreen. - Jason- Where's Madrid?? (That girl was really lost.) - Stew and BooBoo- What is the point of trying to hit a small ball into a hole 300 feet away? I still can't figure that one out. - Mark- Fly, fly away up into the sky. - Salline- Where is the tape of "Mekrose Place" that I gave you a month ago?

To all my friends, good luck next year. I'm going to miss you all.

To All The Faculty&Students- Y'all have made me who I am. I appreciate it PDS. It's been great!

My time here at Providence Day is over, and I'm about to leave here with more knowledge and confidence than I've ever had before.

Jared - You are the only one that will ever care more about yourself than anyone else in this world. Put your head on straight and leave the past in the past because it's all about the CREAM.

Cisco - Dreams come true to those who believe and I'll be waiting for the day to see on that court doing what you like best going to work on those fools.

Isaac - I know times can get hard and if you ever need me it on. But you have one year left take your mind off being an adult and enjoy your life as a teenager you have so much to offer to the younger ones step up.

Benzo/Herb - Well it's almost over time to move on make the best out of every situation we are put in no matter what thanx for keeping my back cause ya'll know who had the front S and D.

Brendan - Be strong and keep your head up and remember it's life outside of basketball like in the classroom making and taking the most out of this school.

Christina - I know it's tuff being along but being along makes you strong.

Oh before I forget, you know who you are when I say my thoughts and feelings of you were all I had to go on but I must say It's been a while since someone has really made me think about how true my feelings can be for once I wish you could look beyond senseless things and in to true feelings to answer at least one of my questions.

Katie, Danke daß du mir alles gegeben hast. Was du gegeben hattest, ich habe eigentlich nie verdient, und ich verstehe das jetzt. Mein Lieb wird immer mit dir sein. Ich hoffe, daß du wenigstens einige gute Erinnerung von unserem Jahr zusammen hast, und ich hoffe, daß du ab und zu an mich denkst.

Eric, I love you. Mom & Bob, thank you for sharing your lives with me. I'd like to say a fond farewell to Paul, Jessie, Hadley, Tim, Mr. Church, Mrs. Steimer, Nick, Gordon, and Stephanie. And for those of you who look at me funny, or condescend to look at me, or have some belief in your inherent social or genetic superiority, you may rot in the lives that either you or your parents have chosen for you. Parting is such sweet sorrow. Goodbye PDS.

Dave - or should I say Tommy. "I was wrong for saying that." I guess all I can say is we survived PDS although coming to school seemed to be an everyday struggle. I wish the best for you in your future plans and I am sure you will succeed. One Love.

Herb - Like I told Dave it has been an everyday struggle but look we made it and that's what counts. No matter what happens always keep your head up - Like I said take it to "anotha level" and don't let little things get in the way. The Year in Review - 4 Sistas nowhere to go, Is your name Scott? meet me at the park!, and NAS which you still aren't ready 4. I wish the best to you and your family. It's been illmatic but now I'm a ghost. One Love.

Jared - When I get a chance I'm going to smash your Boys II Men cds and burn your vest. I am going to prepare you for the Wu TANG type music. I wish you the best and I want you to keep the brotherhood alive and make it stronger at PD. Don't let anyone push you around. Always remember C.R.E.A.M get the money dolla dolla bills ya'll. One Love.

Isaac - I take pride in seeing a brother who seems as dedicated as you to his education. I know for sure that you will encounter much success in the future due to your hard work. I hope the best for you. One Love.

To all the "rookies" - only advice I can give about PD is to take it one day at a time, and remember that you are there to gain the best education possible. One Love.

To my parents - Thank you for all the support and love. I know I would have never made it without you. Love, Sebenza

First, I would like to thank my Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ for guiding me through these 13 years of school. I love you and ask you to continue to guide me throughout life.

Amy: We've actually shared a lot in our year and a half together. There were the days when 2000 was our spot and our venture to Raleigh. I know there are many road trips in our future - all I have to say is watch out Raleigh! You know all of my secrets and I know all yours (just don't tell you-know-who or the whole school will know). I've never told you that you are my best friend because you've never told me, but I know I'm one of yours and you're one of mine. I love you and wish you the best.

Yasmina: I'm so very glad that I've been able to be a friend to you during your stay in America. I hope that your PD experience has been a good one. You'll always have a friend in Charlotte. Ride your camel for a long time for me when you get home. I love you and will never forget you.

Katreen: You know I love you too. Thank you for being my right hand with D.T. We many not have been the best, but it was definitely a concept. You keep blowing out those notes and continue to do well. Tell James I said hi and come to see me next year.

Luz and Michelle: We had fun for two years. It's too bad we couldn't make it three, but them's the breaks. Do well in life.

Ryan, Stacey, and Ginny: My yearbook buddies. It's been hard, but we had fun doing it. Stace & Gin - I hope ya'll invent the all-for-one beauty cream and send me a free lifetime supply. Ryan - Have fun in Colorado. Ski enough for the both of us, but STAY ON TRACK! I'll be sure to call you one I find my tall, dark, handsome, and RICH man.

Davius: We haven't been the best of friends the whole time, but I'm glad we know a little more about each other now. You're not as bad as I thought, at least without Jaime on your --. Don't be a complete stranger next year. Drop a not or call me sometime.

Herb: I really don't know what to say. I'm sorry for everything. I'm glad we made good progress this year. I care about you and don't want to lose touch. Don't get up to A&T and go buck wild, you hear? Stay Hard, (even though I know you're really a sweetheart).

Marc-y D: We haven't been together at all this year, but that's okay. Keep flying. Don't forget our math and French days and most of all, don't forget me. I'll always remember you.

Mr. Heitmiller: You know I couldn't leave without saying bye to you. Thank you for all of your support. I wish you would come and teach me at State. Because of you, I love math - Thanks.

To my French class: I'll miss ya'll next year. Do good and don't give your next teacher too hard a time.

To all of my fellow minorities: Don't give up. It's all worth it in the long run. We haven't all been best friends, but I care about all of you. Make me proud.

To all of the Drill Team: Sorry it didn't work out. I still don't have a Varsity Letter, but that's okay. Go on to do something else and keep on dancin'!

To all of Providence Day: Thank you for this opportunity.

Grace and Peace be unto you, from God our Father, and Jesus Christ His son, our Lord and Saviour. Amen.

WILL THE REAL

"For me there is only the traveling on paths that have heart, on any path that may have heart. There I travel, and the only worthwhile challenge is to traverse its full length. And there I travel looking, looking, breathlessly." - DON JUAN

Mom, DAD + Amy Thank You...

YOU PLEASE STAND UP

"Stand for something or you'll fall for anything!"

CP rainchecks, Eckerd breaks, no gas, no money, "it's real dark in here", the black bottle, "agging" Harley & annoying me, up all night sleep all day, quitting--Yeah! the swimming pools at night (mostly Frankie's), the beach with my parents, Spring Break-- my hero! Lollapalooza, breaking up, getting back together, the Garrett incident--I'm sorry, a different job every month, falling in love! I'LL ALWAYS LOVE YOU, BABY!

SS- 80's music, Zima, "my cigarettes are longer", Eckerd breaks (Phil & Chris), getting attacked by Ian and Sherman, Klunk's approaching, Mike's dumb laugh --uhu uhu, drive by honking, Mr. Bunny humping Mr. Basketball, becoming friends, may it last forever.

ID- M.D.'s party, acrylics, thrifty Thursdays, having a shoe fetish, pretzels, making fun of everybody, the foursome at lunch, going to the mall, coming in late-real late, having a blast! I'll miss ya!

KS- wanting purple eyes, telling weird stories, giant Gap waterproof boots, having one slow eye, Int. Rel.--glad it's over, bumming my cigs, making me laugh--I'll miss ya!

JP- Davius, copying Latin, Herb--crazy guy, crazy lunch, talking too much in English, Tyrone--trouble guy, I'll miss our talks, good luck with your parents.

SM- playing pool, going to the waffle house, Jeffrey and Lowe's, Rick-sick, talking my head off, beeping the crap out of me, Gloria, always being there for me!

Mom & Dad: Thanks so much for all your love and support, I couldn't have made it this far without you! I'll miss you both very much next year. Mom-don't hesitate to call me, Dad- keep Mom sane! I love you both more than anything!

Tripp: I miss you! Hope your having fun at Clemson, but not too much--gotta stay in somehow. Good luck and I love you!

"And lately it occurs to me, what a long strange trip it's been."
-Grateful Dead

"That which does not kill you makes you stronger."
-Nietzsche

I can hardly believe this year is almost over-I never thought I'd get this far this fast. To my "Little" Brother Jonathan, I hope PDS helps you to make all your "dreams" come true. I wish you all the happiness high school can offer - just remember to study and dream - all the time. To Kim - You've become my closest confidant over the past year and a half. I'm glad I got to know you and share all the fun memories we made - ...Tuna Fish for lunch, "I'll race you to class," "Ms. Taylor", AP Bio studying, "Exactly" & "Ya know what I mean." Thanks for listening to all my "guy" problems and it was great helping you with your many men. I know even though we both aren't going to become wolves we'll still be close - especially if I'm at UNC. Anyway stay exactly how you are and I Luv Ya! - Thanks for being U!

Yasmina - My Egyptian "buddy" - I'm so glad that I got to be your buddy. You made my senior year much different than I thought it was going to be. I'll always remember the first time I talked to ya on the phone - senior venture & Brad Pitt! And especially all the Southern you learned. When you return home, don't cry because it's over, smile because it happened. Have fun "riding your super-camel" and remember all the American friends you've made. I'll always be here for ya & I Luv Ya "Buddy" JM: All the ballgames we looked like fools at - but it didn't matter, here's hoping we both find that perfect "man" someday. Good luck next year and keep in touch with me! LDC - yeast infection & waiting on Jessica at the BP, "Do you drink?" nights at the Pterodactyl. Good luck in all you do. MB - Thanks for giving me the back bone I needed for so long and for always calling when you said you would. - smile You'll always have a special place in my heart. Thanks for always being you. I Luv You! Good luck with all you do and keep in touch. RM - The talks we had about how bad our lives are - Have fun in Colorado and don't forget me - I am coming to visit - Don't forget that either. Good luck to a great friend. Mom and Dad - Thanks for putting up with my ways for 18 years. I love you both very much and I know how proud of me you both are. Thanks for always standing behind me when I was right and telling me when I was wrong. Don't worry about me because you know I was taught to behave - like a lady at all times.

To the Class of '95 - The best of luck to each and every one of you (with a few exceptions) & may you get all that you want out of life.

BH: Bagel buddy; The Little Mermaid; Wash 'n' Curl; Where is Gold Hill Road?; Wake up, Eether! Thank you for getting me through math homework every year, and especially thank you for your sincerity, friendship, and helping me take it easy.

CH: Hey, you moron! Ace Ventura Rules. Thanks for always listening and bringing humor into my days.

AD: Commiserating over math tests; dancin' the night away (once I found the party!); Thanks for your kindness. Sun fast!

BN: Pictures in Washington (of who?); JV basketball; church softball; SKOTIS fan club. Thanks for the memories.

RM: Bike rides; your "boyfriend of the week"; soda at sleepovers; Ma Carlisle. Thanks for your honesty, generosity, and ability to make me laugh.

Mom and Dad: We made it! Thank you for placing your confidence in me. Your love and support mean everything. I love you very much!

Class of '95: Best wishes in everything you do!

Letting Go

*The crowd rose and inhaled a collective gasp
 As the elephant glided above them.
 Deafening calliope blasts made their heartbeat faster
 As Dumbo waved his pudgy cartoon trunk,
 Meanwhile in ring number two,
 A soaring lady in ballet tights
 Stood on a milk white stallion
 Canterng gently round and round.
 On her shoulders perched a young girl*

Staring straight ahead, arms outspread, Intent on balance and control.

*Their routine ended with somersaults into the sawdust.
 Softly, then, the mother lifted her child
 Again to the stallion's rippling back,
 She smiled into the bright brown eyes
 And pressed a blue feather into the fingers
 Of her waiting, nervous daughter,
 'Whispering just these words,
 'you can fly.'*

Congratulations, Kristen, on a job well done! It's so hard to believe you've already reached such an important milestone in your life--your graduation. We are both proud and sad. We are proud of your sweet spirit and compassion, for others, proud of your accomplishments and approach towards life, yet sad that you will be leaving our everyday family life.

Our continued prayer for God's blessing in your life goes out to you--Always pursue love in your life, be with those that bring out the best in you, set high goals and never stop learning. Know for sure that of the few things you can control of your future is your attitude towards life. React to life with a positive spirit and with love in your heart and your life will be blessed--We wish you life's best!

Hadley ,

I've been hoping the day that you would go to college would never come. Not many people are lucky enough to have their best friend live in the same house with them. We have shared everything over the years- the tears, the laughter, and millions of memories. I couldn't imagine my life without you. thank you for all the support good advise, lectures, and friendship to keep me out of trouble. Our friendship means everything to me and that will never change no matter where you are.

I love you,
Caroline

Well, we've come to the end of a year full of UNFORGETTABLE moments. It's been a hectic and stressful nine months for everyone, and the editors, Gwen, Ivy, and Jessie, would like to extend their infinite thanks to everyone involved.

To the Photographers: You have one of the toughest jobs on the staff. Pictures are the yearbook. Half the people don't even read our copy.

To the Writers/Layout People: We know that organizing 15 different fonts, point sizes, and folio art is not an easy task. You've done a great job of processing and producing it all.

To Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Hunter: Without the use of your computers we would not have been able to finish the yearbook until July. Thanks again.

To Sarah Wagner and Kim Wilks: Being second in command is not easy. Thanks for putting up with us and for all you contributed to the book. Good luck, Sarah, with Hilary and Sarah Lincoln next year.

To Hilary Jones: We wouldn't have been able to pay for the yearbook without your ad management skills. Thanks a million and good luck next year.

And...Last but not Least, To Mr. Reyelt: You did a wonderful job of tolerating the petty squabbles and misunderstandings of three teenage girls. Thanks for pushing us through it and helping us produce the greatest book yet.

Good luck to everyone on the staff who will be returning next year. We feel confident that Sarah, Sarah, and Hilary will be just as good at being editors as we were. (Just Kidding) We know that no one will forget this year, but then again HOW COULD YOU FORGET?

Reyelt

You have brains in your head.
You have feet in your shoes.
You can steer yourself
any direction you choose.
You're on your own. And you know what you know.
And YOU are the guy who'll decide where to go.
You'll look up and down streets.
Look 'em over with care.
About some you will say, "I don't choose to go there."
With your head full of brains and your shoes full of feet, you're too smart to go down any not-so-good street.

And you may not find any you'll want to go down.
In that case, of course, you'll head straight out of town.
Out there things can happen and frequently do to people as brainy
and footsy as you.
And when things start to happen, don't worry.
Don't stew.
Just go right along.
You'll start happening too.
-Dr. Suess
